CONFIRMS COOLIDGE LIST

The sixty-four appointments made by Governor Coolidge in his recent shakeup of State boards and commissions were confirmed today by the Council.

The appointments included the two made today, Frank A. Bayrd of Malden as member of the Metropolitan District Council, and of Herbert F. Wasgatt of Everett as associate member of the State Board of Labor and Industry.

Mr. Bayrd succeeds to the position refused by Charles S. Baxter, who turned down the $1,000 position because of alleged slights to his friends by the Governor. Mr. Bayrd is publisher of the Malden Evening News.

Mr. Wasgatt takes the place left open by the refusal of Herbert L. Tinkham to serve. He is a former Mayor of Everett, and former member of the Governor's Council. The place carries a salary of $4,000 a year.

CURLEY EXPECTS TO BE OUT THIS WEEK

Ex-Mayor James M. Curley, who has been ill, threatened with pneumonia, was reported today at his home on Jamaicaway as greatly improved. He expects to be able to get out doors in a few days.

GAME OF SOLDIER FATAL

Holding his father's revolver in his two shubby hands, ten-year-old Nathan Katz called upon Adelaide Swan, his five-year-old playmate, to surrender and pulled the trigger. A bullet sped from the thirty-eight calibre weapon. It killed the child almost instantly. The tragedy occurred at the Swan home, No. 59 Vine street, Lynn, today.

The children were playing soldier.

Morris Katz applied for and received permission from the Lynn police to carry weapons this morning.

Saturday he was beaten badly by two thugs who waylaid him and attempted to rob him. He purchased a new 38-calibre revolver. Compelled by his injuries to remain home, he left the loaded gun in a bureau.

Little Nathan found the revolver and went out with it to play soldier with Adelaide Swan. The Katzes live at No. 61 Vine street, beside the Swans.

About 10 o'clock the boy pulled the trigger as he levelled the weapon at the little girl who threw up her hands in mock answer to the call of the boy.

The bark of the gun was followed by the collapse of the diminutive form.

Adelaide was taken into the house. She did not regain consciousness, and died around 11.

It was not until after 1 o'clock that the police were informed of the tragedy.

They started an immediate investigation. It resulted in the discovery of the tragic ending of the children's game.

Text of American Note in Jenkins Case

Washington, Dec. 1.—Following is the text of the note transmitted by the United States to the Mexican government:

I have not failed to transmit to my government the note of the Mexican government, dated November 26, 1919, with reference to the case of William O. Jenkins, American consular agent, at Puebla, and I am now in receipt of a reply from the government of the United States, which I am instructed immediately to transmit to you.

The government of the United States declines to be drawn into a judicial discussion of irrelevant matter, or unimportant incidents brought forward in connection with this case.

The Mexican government cannot be misled, as it intimates, by the citation by the United States of "no principle or precedent of international law and not even a reason" for Jenkins' release; for obviously no such citation is necessary for the enlightenment of a government of the present day.

"NOT BASED ON STRENGTH."

The Mexican government believes, and rightly so, that the American request for Jenkins' release is not based on "solely the strength of the country which makes it," for it knows the request is founded on the justice of the right of an American citizen and United States consular officer to fair treatment, while residing and discharging his duties within Mexican jurisdiction with the knowledge and approval of the Mexican government.

The Mexican government may contend that the imprisonment of the victim is necessary for the investigation by a judge under the "constant vigilance of public

CONSUL A VICTIM, NOTE DECLARES

Washington, Dec. 1.—That the charges against Consular Agent William O. Jenkins are unfounded, in the opinion of the American government, is stated in the new note to Mexico and, therefore, the demand for the immediate release of Jenkins must be renewed.

The note, which was signed by Secretary of State Lansing, does not constitute an ultimatum, but is the next thing to it.

It points out that Jenkins is being persecuted while his kidnapers are at large in the second largest city in Mexico, and that no attempt is being made to catch them.

The United States government declines, in the note, to be drawn into any discussion of irrelevant matters or unimportant issues.

That the United States and Mexico are within an ace of rupture stood revealed today when the contents of the note were made public by the State Department.

It is expected Congress will immediately take a stand in regard to the Mexican situation, backing up the administration. Opinion in both Houses seems to be that the time has come when an impossible situation

TWO DEAD, ONE DYING IN AUTO CRASH

Worcester, Dec. 1.—Two boys are dead and another is dying as the result of a wild ride in a stolen automobile which started in this city and ended when the machine crashed into a tree in Holden, eight miles from here, today.

The dead boys are:

William Larkin, seventeen, No. 137 Harlem street, Worcester.

Thomas F. Powers, seventeen, No. 18 Prescott place, Worcester.

Raymond Whitney, eighteen, the other youth, is dying at the Holden Hospital with fractured lower limbs and internal injuries. Whitney lives at No. 29 Vine street, Worcester.

The automobile was stolen from Andrew Arviston of Sterling street, yesterday. The boys are believed to have driven the machine all night and were returning to Worcester today when the accident occurred.

They were speeding at about thirty-five miles an hour when the automobile skidded, crashed into a tree and turned turtle. Larkin and Powers were both pinned under the overturned machine and died instantly. Whitney was hurled twenty-five feet over a stone wall into a field near the Rutland Sanitarium.

Reciprocity in Banking

Reciprocity brings its own reward. Depositors who have helped the Tremont Trust Company grow faster than any banking institution in the State got theirs, in the shape of the largest rate of interest paid by any savings institution, reckoned monthly.

The year nearing its close has been one of service for the people by this Company. Our example is being followed by other banks in increasing the interest rate, paying interest monthly and allowing withdrawals at any time practically without loss of interest—despite their criticism that we were not "conservative."

Reciprocity prompts people to place their savings with us. They know that if it were not for our fight in the Legislature, savings institutions would be prohibited from paying interest on deposits oftener than once in six months.

The fight for the people is still on. Certain influences are at work to undo what was accomplished through the Referendum. But right will prevail if vigilance on our part can accomplish it.

Certain bankers need practical demonstration that the people are back of a banking institution that will treat its depositors as generously as conservative and unselfish banking will permit.

The larger the Tremont Trust Company grows, the sooner will all the banking institutions in the State do as it has done as to the payment of interest in its savings department at the rate of and permit withdrawals at any time practically without loss of interest. It is therefore to the advantage of all the people to open an account with us, in either our Savings or Commercial Departments.

We are also equipped to give you real service. We have splendid new and commodious quarters; we have every facility also in our Foreign Exchange and Safe Deposit Departments. Nearly all languages spoken.

You may open an account with us in person or by mail. Do it NOW!

UNITED STATES NOTE IN JENKINS CASE A SHARP WARNING TO MEXICO

opinion" of the truth regarding his abduction, and that a right of release on bail is a palliative for such wrongful imprisonment, but the United States is constrained to the opinion that such arguments are mere excuses.

The government of the United States invites and desires the fullest possible examination and investigation of this case, but it cannot admit that it is necessary, in order to ascertain the facts, that Mr. Jenkins should be retained in prison even with the privilege of applying for bail.

My government is satisfied that Mr. Jenkins will not place any obstacles in the way of a complete and full examination of himself or his witnesses or of the events leading up to and connected with his abduction. The Mexican government prefers to attribute the American note to an imperfect knowledge of the Mexican penal laws, and proceeds to explain with refinement the intricacies of Mexican penal proceedings. But the government of the United States fails to discern in their application to this case at the hands of Mexican authorities any approximation to impartial treatment of Jenkins, and the Mexican government knows the absence of such treatment is the reason for the American request.

The Mexican government maintains that it cannot grant the request of the United States for Jenkins' release for the reason that under international law no diplomatic intervention is appropriate unless a denial of justice has occurred, and because the Mexican government is not in a position to demand Jenkins' release in view of the separation of the executive and judicial powers under the Mexican form of government and the independence of the State courts, by one of which Jenkins is held.

A DENIAL OF JUSTICE.

The succinct answer to this contention is, as everyone knows, that a denial of justice has already taken place, and also because the Mexican constitution specifically gives the Federal tribunal jurisdiction of "all cases concerning diplomatic agents and consular officers."

The United States is not to be driven by such subtle arguments into a defence of its request for the release of Mr. Jenkins. It is for Mexico to show cause for his detention, not for the United States to plead for his liberation.

Stripped of extraneous matter, with which the Mexican note of November 26 endeavors to clothe it, the naked case of Jenkins stands forth: Jenkins, a United States consular agent, accredited to the government of Mexico, is imprisoned for "rendering false judicial testimony" in connection with the abduction of which he was the victim.

This is the substance of the Mexican note:

My government is pleased to learn that the imprisonment of Jenkins stands on this single and well-defined ground, and that the reported statement that Mexican authorities have caused the imprisonment of Jenkins because of collusion with his abductors and rebellion against the State are not seriously regarded by your government.

PROSECUTING THE VICTIM.

In whose interest, then, is the charge of false swearing brought against Jenkins? His abductors? He is in equity the complainant in the case of his abduction, not the defendant, as the Mexican government now makes him out to be. The Mexican government is prosecuting the victim instead of the perpetrators of the crime. While the outlaws, who endangered his life, and took away a large part of his fortune, enjoy their freedom, the Mexican authorities now deprive Jenkins of his liberty.

Moreover, the ground expressed for the imprisonment of Jenkins, namely, that he is supposed "to be responsible for the crime of rendering false judicial testimony" must be taken—and my government directs special attention to this point—merely as an expression of opinion on the part of the Mexican government, as it is entirely unsupported by evidence.

There is not produced any testimony rendered by him or any extract from such testimony tending to show the correctness of this opinion. The Mexican government cannot expect the United States to accept in the grave circumstances of this case such a bare, unsupported statement as a valid excuse for the imprisonment of an American consular officer, particularly in view of the fact that the investigation of the case by the representatives of the United States in Mexico, so far as it has proceeded, failed utterly to support this opinion of your government.

On the contrary, the investigation gives the government of the United States every reason to believe that Mr. Jenkins has not knowingly given any false testimony in respect to vital points in his case; although he has been harassed by Mexican authorities to give such testimony, even lying in the hospital, to weak and exhausted to make them, as a result of his treatment by the abductors, and while he knew evidence was being obtained against him through intimidation of witnesses. So stand the single, unsupported, and my government believes, utterly unfounded, grounds alleged for Jenkins' imprisonment.

UNSUPPORTED CHARGES.

"What conclusion is to be drawn from such a reply of the Mexican government, other than that there has been a studied effort on the part of the Mexican authorities to ensnare Jenkins in the intricacies of legal proceedings by alleging the commission of technical offences and by bringing unsupported charges against him, for a purpose, in the first place, to divert attention of the American public and the American government, and, indeed, of Mexicans themselves, from the actual situation, namely, that Puebla, the capital of the State of Puebla, and, perhaps, the second largest city in Mexico, is without protection from outlaws who infest the immediate neighborhood and who are accustomed openly and freely to visit the city without hindrance; that by the failure to furnish adequate protection in this district the Mexican authorities have, through their negligence, made possible the abduction of Jenkins, and that in harmony with such an attitude on the part of the Mexican authorities they have failed to carry out the duty and obligations incumbent upon them to apprehend and punish the bandits concerned in the crime of which Jenkins was the victim.

And in the second place, it appears to have been the purpose of the Mexican government to assume a wilful indifference to the feelings of the American people that have been aroused to the point of indignation by the exposure, hardships, and physical sufferings endured by Jenkins during his abduction and his subsequent treatment at the hands of Mexican authorities.

In view of the situation which has been set forth, and in view particularly of the belief of my government that the charge against Jenkins of deliberate false swearing is unfounded, the government of THE UNITED STATES MUST RENEW ITS REQUEST FOR THE IMMEDIATE RELEASE OF CONSULAR AGENT JENKINS FROM FURTHER IMPRISONMENT. LANSING.

Mexican Official Accuses Jenkins of Consenting to Kidnaping

By International News Service.

Mexico, City, Dec. 1.—Four Mexicans probably will be charged with treason in connection with the case of W. O. Jenkins, the United States Consular Agent at Puebla, who is now in jail, according to a statement made by Minister of Finance Luis Cabrera, a brother of the Governor of Puebla.

Minister Cabrera declared that the Puebla authorities had already gathered enough evidence to indicate that Mr. Jenkins had voluntarily consented to be kidnaped by Mexican rebels. The investigation, according to the finance minister, has implicated four Mexicans, among them Eduardo Mestre, attorney for Mr. Jenkins, and Guillermo Novoa, another well-known member of the Mexican bar.

Cabrera claims that Frederico Cordoba, a rebel chieftain, who abducted the consular agent, had been friendly with Jenkins before the Puebla revolt.

must be cleared up. Had the administration not taken the steps it has it is regarded as probable that Congress itself would have taken the initiative.

CALL FOR ACTION NOW.

The Cabinet meets tomorrow. Secretary of State Lansing is expected to acquaint his colleagues with the situation as it has developed since his last appearance before them. The President's advisors are understood to be of one mind as to the immediate necessity for a show-down with Mexico, one way or another, and an end be put to the ceaseless wrangling which has been going on for the past two years, in fact, ever since Carranza came into power. It is merely a question of the proper time and form of the final measures. In administration circles and at the Capitol, it is considered that the last note to Mexico clears the way for the final phase.

Statements that large forces of Carranza troops are massing in Northern Mexico, and that 45,000 National Guard troops will be among the first called in case of American intervention, also featured the Mexican crisis today.

The movement of Mexican forces was officially said to be due to the presence of bandits, but it is pointed out that they were being distributed to advantage in the event of American action.

Unofficial reports from American military headquarters at the border showed that the United States forces were prepared to cross the line inside of twenty-four hours. A report from Major-General Jesse McI. Carter, chief of the militia bureau, also showed that a large number of National Guard troops could be moved to the border at once.

MORE TROOPS RECRUITED.

The exact number of State troops available is withheld, but General Carter's report showed that National Guard organizations given Federal recognition up to June 30, 1919, numbered 1,198 officers and 38,012 enlisted men. In the last five months numerous States have recruited guard companies up to the minimum strength of 100 officers and men, which would bring the total well up to 45,000.

Pancho Villa is reported to be in the vicinity of Pilar de Conchos, fifty miles north of Parral, near the scene of the capture of General Angeles. Villa has sworn vengeance on the executors of Angeles, and has declared that "for every peso that the traitors received I will take a drop of their blood. Then I will thrown them into the fire to perish like the coyotes they are."

Washington, Dec. 1.—"I venture to state that during the last five years Villa has given more practical protection to Americans in Mexico than any other military leader," said Jeff McLemore, former Representative from Texas.

McLemore also declared that Villa had nothing to do with the Columbus raid and avers that this will be proven by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in its investigation. McLemore said he has information that Villa was 200 miles away and wounded when the Columbus raid occurred.

ing, Councillor Lewis R. Sullivan announced that he had voted against the confirmation of the entire five appointees to the new Public Utilities Commission.

"I did not feel that there was a representative of the general public among the entire five," Councillor Sullivan said.

The members of the Public Utilities Commission appointed by Governor Coolidge are: Former Attorney-General Henry C. Attwill of Lynn, chairman; Everett E. Stone of Springfield, a member of the Public Service Commission; Alonzo R. Weed of Newton, chairman of the Gas and Electric Light Commission; David A. Ellis, the Boston lawyer, and Henry G. Wells of Haverhill, former president of the Senate and former District Attorney of Essex County. The salary of the chairman is $8,000 and of the associate commissioners $7,000 each.

The Board takes the place of the old Public Service Commission and the Gas and Electric Light Commission. It will have charge over the big public-utility corporations, including railroads, railways, telephone, telegraph, gas, electric and water-power interests.

BAZELEY GETS A SURPRISE.

Former Senator William A. L. Bazeley of Uxbridge returned from Virginia today surprised that he had been appointed Commissoner of Conservation, at $5,000 a year. He said he was not a candidate, had not discussed the matter with Governor Coolidge, and was not certain that he would accept the nomination. After a five-minutes' talk with Governor Coolidge, he announced that he had decided to accept.

The great shake up effective at once. The new appointees were expected to qualify without delay. Some of the positions pay as high as $8,000 a year. Thirty-one department chiefs and commissioners were beheaded. They were moving out today.

Governor Coolidge has three more jobs to fill—commissioner of banking and commissioner of insurance, at $5,000 each, and the unpaid director of the Department of Savings Bank Life Insurance. It is said that he delayed filling the insurance commissionership in order to save the berth for Clarence W. Hobbs of Worcester. Hobbs, as a member of the Legislature, is ineligible, but the coming of New Year's will lift the ban.

mittee of the manufacturers today. Both sides were reported in a conciliatory mood.

The principal complaint of the representatives of the 112 mill owners affected has been that the workers had no body with full authority to speak for them. Union leaders have had no power to call off the strike except in case the full demands of 25 per cent. wage increases were granted.

The vote delegating complete power to the Textile Council was finished at noon. The vote was taken in Weavers' Hall, which was the centre of strikers' activities during the day.

MAY ACCEPT 15 PER CENT.

The general current of talk among the strikers, although not official, favors a 15 per cent. wage increase in the compromise. They will be satisfied with that, although their original demand was for a 25 per cent. raise.

The stationary firemen at the mills today voted to go out on strike in sympathy with the textile workers Wednesday morning. This, of course, will be automatically called off if a settlement is reached before that time.

Chief of Police Feeney said that there was only one case of disorder during the day. At the mills owned by W. F. Shove, president of the Fall River Mill Owners' Association, and also president of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, a stone was hurled through a window of the weave room. Chief Feeney said he believed it was done by small boys.

STRIKERS ARE PEACEABLE.

Absolute lack of disorder featured the opening of the strike. Although less than 1 per cent. of the city's total of 40,000 mill operatives reported for work, there was no attempt to interfere with those who did enter the mills. Except at Weavers' Hall and in front of the newspaper bulletin boards there were no gatherings of strikers.

But few pickets were present at the mill gates, and in many instances, the union patrols were omitted entirely in the initial strike activity.

A large force of police massed about the mill entrances was early withdrawn, in view of the peaceful conduct of the strike.

Of the six Iron Works Mills, owned by the Bordens, between 200 and 300 operatives reported for duty. No effort was made to start the day's work. The ring spinners were about the only branch in the mill industry represented.

REFUSE LESS THAN 25 PER CENT.

The Merchants' Association is believed to have become alarmed at the prospect of a strike during the approaching Christmas season, and felt impelled to bring about the conference. But as far as could be learned from either side, neither would make concessions towards anything less than the 25 per cent. demanded by the operatives, and refused by the mill men.

Conference Fails to Settle Wage Row for New Bedford Workers

New Bedford, Dec. 1.—An eleventh-hour conference between representatives of the unions comprising the Textile Council and representatives of the New Bedford Cotton Manufacturers' Association failed to effect a settlement of the wage dispute.

The 33,000 mill operatives belonging to the several unions included in the council decided to wait a while longer before voting on the proposal to strike, however, and the principal industry of the city was resumed as usual this morning.

The conference was brought about by Mayor Charles S. Ashley, acting in the capacity of a disinterested third party.

While the results of the conference were not made known it is understood that both factions are agreeable to a compromise, but will need a few more days to settle their differences to the satisfaction of all concerned. There is every indication that the strike may be averted.

Martial Law May Be Next Step to Put Down Sinn Fein

London, Dec. 1.—"It is believed that martial law in Dublin cannot long be delayed," said a Dublin dispatch to the Daily Express today.

Barricades may be erected on all of the leading Irish roads, so that police and troops can prevent the use of suspicious motor cars.

"The refusal of members of the motor car drivers' union to ask for permits under the new automobile order has resulted in the withdrawal of practically all motor cars from the streets.

"The government is understood to be contemplating immediate and sterner measures against the outbreak of crime and violence that has followed the proclamation suppressing the Sinn Fein."

New Bedford Silk Mill Workers Surprised by Voluntary Raise in Pay

New Bedford, Dec. 1.—When the 1,800 workers in the plant of the National Spun Silk Company went to work this morning they learned that the management had granted them a voluntary increase of 10 per cent. in wages. The action of the management came without direct solicitation by the employes.

This corporation is not a member of the New Bedford Cotton Manufacturers' Association, and the demand for a raise of 25 per cent. presented to that organization by the Textile Council therefore had no bearing upon this mill.

Big Mills in Maynard Tied Up by Strike Row Between Rival Unions

Maynard, Dec. 1.—The Affadet mills of the American Woolen Company in this town were practically tied up today when all members of the United Textile unions went on strike, supporting the weavers who three weeks ago walked out rather than work with forty members of the Amalgamated Workers of America, a radical union organization.

Officials of the textile unions stated today that behind the strike lies the question of the closed shop. They declare the American Woolen Company, after flatly stating they were in favor of reinstating the striking weavers and would grant their demands to oust the radicals, established a new labor board which repudiated the action of the original board, and announced its opposition to the strike on the ground that it opposed the closed shop.

They say that to recognize the strikers they would have to reorganize the textile unions and while they stood ready to deal with their employes, they did not care to deal with representatives of the national union.

As a result of this latest turn, 2,600 textile workers left the mills today. Their leaders say the struggle will be carried into every one of the American Woolen Company's plants, of which there are fifty five in the United States, mostly in New England.

Edward Carlton, chairman of the textile council, said today that the officials of the company and the unions were in complete agreement relative to the original action of the striking weavers. This agreement, he insisted, was made with the labor board of the woolen company.

Recently, however, the old labor board was deposed, and a new board was established whose avowed purpose is to promote harmony between employes and employers.

Carlton says that this new board reversed the favorable report of the old board, and notified the unions they could not deal with union employes.

SEND KAISER TO LONELY ISLAND AS AN EXILE, SAYS LADY ASTOR

WOMAN IS OPPOSED TO TRIAL

Fair M. P. Declares Public Arraignment Would Make Wilhelm a Martyr

By Universal Service.
Special Cable Dispatch.

London, Nov. 30.—"The worst punishment the world can give the Kaiser is to leave him alone—exile him to an obscure island."

Lady Astor, M. P., Britain's first woman Commoner, thus disposed of the most interesting problem in the first announcement of her policy given out today at Cliveden, near Windsor, where she is resting while preparing for her installation as a member of the Commons tomorrow.

DON'T WANT HIM MARTYRED.

"If we execute the Kaiser," she added, "he will be a martyr and we do not want that kind of a man as a martyr."

This recalls the scene on the Astor estate at Cliveden just before the war, when the King and a distinguished party of German diplomats, including Prince Lichnowsky, the German ambassador to London, and Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador to Washington, were Lady Astor's guests.

Von Bernstorff, after viewing the magnificent estate from the terrace in front of the hall, praised it profusely to the hostess, who retorted:

"But I'll bet you've got plans right now in your pocket for the invasion of this beautiful country."

Von Bernstorff reddened visibly and quickly turned the conversation into another channel.

"But I was right," her ladyship said afterward.

LAUDS PRINCE OF WALES.

Referring to the visit of the Prince of Wales to America, Lady Astor said:

"He is the great individual asset of the British empire. I have never met a young fellow of more charm, more democracy or with a higher sense of duty. He has done more to strengthen the ties between the two countries than any other single man."

The Prince is very fond of the Astors and has dined at their home several times and also has visited the Cliveden estate, which is only a short distance from Windsor.

Of her new responsibilities before the world, Lady Astor said:

"I am fully conscious of the responsibility resting upon me. I did not seek the nomination, but I did not shrink from it. I will do my duty, you may rest assured."

TELLS HER PROGRAM.

Her program of service in the Commons was summed up thus:

"For five years England has been concentrated on destruction and living on her capital. We must reconstitute our industrial organization and increase our exports.

"I stand for temperance with a capital T. We must solve the British drink question with local option. England is not ready for prohibiton.

"And I'll be no silent member. If I should fail at Westminister the consequence would be lamentable, not for the men, but for the women of England—in fact, of the world. I am going to stand for British men and women and hope to make demands on the government which will be really practicable."

TO GET HEARTY WELCOME.

Despite the irritation displayed by a few members of Parliament of the election of Lady Astor, she is assured a most hearty welcome to the House on Monday. Elaborate plans have been made for her reception and all the available seats are already taken.

The fact that Lloyd George is to be one of Lady Astor's sponsors tomorrow recalls the fact that it is the first time in two generations that a British Premier has acted as guide for a new member. This goes to show the high regard the Welsh wizard has for "My good friend Lady Astor."

Lady Astor made her first public speech as M. P.-elect yesterday afternoon at the Plymouth dock yards, where she told a great crowd of fisher folk and dock laborers of her plans to aid the wives and children of the dockyard men during the industrial crisis which hinges upon the curtailment of the government's ship building work at Plymouth.

ONE SHOT DEAD, 3 WOUNDED, IN STRIKE RIOT

Wheeling, W. Va., Dec. 1.—One man was shot and killed and three others, including Sheriff W. E. Clayton, of Marshall county, were wounded, the sheriff probably fatally, in fighting between steel strikers and deputies at the gates of the National Tube Company's plant in Benwood today.

Matto Brown, a striker, was killed. Deputy Sheriff D. D. McArdle was slightly wounded by a bullet and John Muharnow, a striker, was shot in the face. His condition is serious. Sheriff Clayton was shot in the back.

Clayton and five of his deputies were summoned to Benwood when crowds of strikers prevented workmen from entering the mills. Stones and clubs were flying when the officers reached the scene.

Rushing the mob, the officers arrested the ringleader, when a shot rang out and the sheriff fell. The shot was the signal for a general gun battle. Deputy McArdle was the next to drop.

After two of their number had been hit the strikers withdrew. More than 100 shots were exchanged.

Following the battle Prosecuting Attorney Parriott sent a request to Charleston for a detachment of troops to be stationed in Benwood.

FOOTPADS ROB CHINESE, BUT FAIL TO FIND $200

Two footpads held up and assaulted Samuel Wan, a Chinese merchant, near Washington street and Broadway today, robbed him of $20 and fled before they discovered $200 Wan had in an inside overcoat pocket. The Chinese Merchants' Association, of which Wan is a member, announced it would offer a reward for their apprehension.

Just prior to Wan's holdup, two men, believed to be the same pair, attempted to rob a man in Washington street, near Dorr street. The victim's cries for assistance caused the thieves to take to their heels. Wan is the fifth Chinese to be robbed within the past two months.

GERMANY FEARS NEW WAR OVER FIUME

London, Dec. 1.—German officials are taking a gloomy view of the European situation, some even predicting that a general conflagration may come, with the Fiume tangle furnishing the war spark, according to a Berlin dispatch to the Daily Express today.

The Jugo-Slav frontier has been closed since Thursday and reliable information is said to have been received in Berlin that the Italians have liberated and armed 40,000 Croatians.

Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in Boston for week ending Saturday, November 29th, on shipments sold out averaged as follows: Domestic beef, 16.63 cents per pound.—Adv.

ARREST 24 IN CHARLESTOWN CRIME WAVE

Following the crime wave which swept Charlestown over the week-end, in which a liquor store and a distillery were looted and a State Guardsman and a civilian shot, twenty-four men were in the Charlestown Court today charged with drunkenness.

This is the largest number arrested in one day on this charge since prohibition went into effect, or in fact, since more than a year ago.

All the defendants claimed that they had been drinking Jamaica ginger or hard cider, and all denied having had possession of any of the liquor alleged to have been stolen. Six were released on probation; one was fined $15, another $10, several $5, and others had their cases filed.

The wounded guardsman is James Earl, Jr., of No. 141 Andover street, Peabody, who was shot in the left hand while standing on Phipps street early yesterday morning. Joseph Carroll, twenty-two, claiming his address as Cordis street, Charlestown, received a charge of buckshot in both legs. His claim that he had been shot by a guardsman was questioned, as the guardsmen do not use buckshot. Both men were taken to the Relief Hospital.

During the wave of lawlessness which extended over forty-eight hours, the Middlesex Wine Store was looted of more than $1,000 worth of goods, and a distillery on Water street was entered and robbed. Residents told of seeing young men running through the streets with eight-quart measures filled with liquor. On Sunday night a near-riot occurred opposite the police station when officers arrested six men charged with drunkenness and with insulting women. Someone aimed a bottle at Patrolman Toland, but missed. A crowd collected and Lieutenant Gess of the State Guard, with twenty comrades, went from the armory to the rescue and dispersed the crowd.

FISHING SMACK AND CREW FEARED LOST

New York, Dec. 1.—Five men who put to sea yesterday on the fishing smack Flora D. are believed today to have lost their lives in the terrific storm which swept New York waters. Searchers have failed to find trace of the smack and seafaring men say that it would have been impossible for the vessel to have weathered the storm. The smack was commanded by Captain Fritz Bryant.

FOUR LEXINGTON MEN HURT IN AUTO UPSET

Lexington, Dec. 1.—Raymond E. Dalrymple of No. 3 Sheridan street suffered a broken collarbone when his automobile overturned on Massachusetts avenue here. Three other young men with him received minor injuries. They were: Russell Dalrymple, his brother, William J. Keefe and Albert Pherson, both of No. 35 Woburn street. The accident was caused by a loose tire.

JITNEY OWNERS LOSE LEGAL BATTLE

Fined at Salem, Despite Acceptance of 'Donations' Instead of Regular Fare

Salem, Dec. 1.—Jitney owners today lost the opening round in their State-wide fight to avoid being legislated out of business following the demand of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company.

Judge Sears in Salem District Court found four Danvers jitney men guilty of a breach of the ordinance making their business illegal, notwithstanding "camouflage" which they maintained kept them within the letter of the law. They were fined $10 each and appealed.

The decision was of interest to jitney owners in all sections of the State, where the competition between automobile carriers and trolley cars is keen. The Danvers men sought to evade the intent of the ordinance putting them out of business by not accepting fares within town limit. "Donations" by passengers were taken instead. Counsel for the jitney owners argued that the nonacceptance of fares changed the character of the machines, and that they were no longer jitneys.

It developed in court that the owners did charge fares, as usual, in Salem, where no ordinance made their business illegal.

Danvers village government legislated the jitney business out of being after the Eastern Massachusetts officials had indicated that the town must choose between jitneys and trolleys.

Owners of jitneys in Lawrence and elsewhere were represented at today's hearing in court.

Police Scouts Are Trailing Drivers of Jitneys at Lawrence

Lawrence, Dec. 1.—Police scouts are busy investigating cases of alleged violation of the recently enacted jitney ordinance. In numerous instances the names of men who claim to be in the taxi-cab business were taken by the police when it was noted that passengers were taken on. The claim is made by the jitney men that there is no law against their engaging in the taxi-cab business.

At the regular meeting of the council held this morning Charles P. Rushforth and a number of jitney men were present to ask the council for the privilege of hackney licenses which, under an old city ordinance, must be granted before a person can engage in even taxi-cab traffic.

SWEATER WINS COLLEGE GIRL A HUSBAND

Pittsfield, Dec. 1.—How a college girl knitted her way into a sergeant-major's heart through a war sweater and married him after three days' courtship became known here when Don William Butler arrived with a Southern bride.

Mr. Butler is a son of Assistant Postmaster James H. Butler of No. 202 East street. His bride was Miss Mary Elizabeth Butterfield, daughter of C. S. Butterfield, a banker of Brook Haven, Miss. At the time of her marriage she was a senior at Randolph Macon College, Lynchburg, Va.

The young woman was an enthusiastic war knitter, and when she turned out her twenty-fifth sweater, "just for fun" she sewed her name and address on the inside.

Young Butler was at that time with the regular army in France, and the sweater came to him. The incident led to a correspondence, and when the young soldier was discharged from service he went to see his inamorata.

Result, an elopement from college, wedding bells in Washington, D. C., and joyous telegrams to all the family.

Mr. Butler is twenty-six, and his bride, twenty-two. His family is prominent here. The bridegroom has a position with the General Electric Company, and the couple are making their home for the present with Mr. Butler's parents.

PETERS' PLANS TO FIGHT 'REDS' OUTLINED

Would Co-ordinate Government Agencies and Campaign for Education

Mayor Peters outlined tentative plans for co-ordinating all the various agencies of local State and Federal government in the fight on Bolshevism at a meeting in his office late today.

The Mayor proposed that information obtained by these separate agencies be pooled and that an aggressive, educational campaign to offset Bolshevist propaganda be inaugurated. To this end he suggested:

1—A system of making generally available for the agencies of city, State and nation the information on Bolshevist activity obtained separately by each agency.

2—An Americanization campaign which will bring to the attention of every individual whom the revolutionary elements seek to excite a knowledge of the principles of our government.

ATTACKS PRESENT METHOD.

Mayor Peter adeclared that valuable time and information are lost by the present method of each agency working for itself and that such methods do not tend to be vigorous expulsion of Bolshevism.

Secret meetings are held in Boston at which speeches are made by agitators whose object is to undermine confidence in the government, with the ultimate intention to bring about its overthrow, he said.

Mayor Peters declared emphatically that it was just as necessary that this propaganda should be met by the spread of information tending to show the real principles and purposes of government as that these agitators should be run down and lodged behind prison bars.

INFORMATION NEEDED.

"The statements they are making are exaggerated and untrue," he declared. "These revolutionary elements are seeking to excite the people against the government, and we must find a way to Americanize those to whom the Bolshevists appeal by informing them of the real, true purposes of government."

Boston Common meetings have been discontinued, the Mayor stated, since the police strike, but when the Common is thrown open again there is danger that the Bolshevists may pervert its uses as a forum for free speech by sowing their dangerous doctrines, he declared.

Representatives of the army and navy, as well as of the United States Department of Justice the immigration office, the State police, who were represented by Chief Plunkett; the Boston detective force, represented by Chif Inspector John R. McGarr; District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier for Suffolk County, United States District Attorney Thomas J. Boynton and Adjutant-General Jesse F. Stevens attended today's meeting.

LEXINGTON WILL HAVE TOWN MEETING DEC. 9

PRICE OF WALTHAM WATCHES INCREASED

Coincident with the return of employes of the Waltham Watch Company to a forty-eight-hour schedule today came the announcement of a 10 per cent. increase to wholesalers and jobbers in the price of Waltham watches. The return to the forty-eight from the fifty-hour schedule practically amounts to a 4 per cent increase in wages.

The street cars will run in accordance with the new time, it was announced at the factory.

MEN WITH BURGLARS' TOOLS HELD IN LYNN

Charged with having burglars' tools in their possession three men were arrested by six inspectors of police in a lodging house in Andrew street, Lynn, today and held in $5,000 for trial December 8. The men gave the names of Stanley Smith, Stephen Foley and Michael Mazukiervize. The prisoners, it is said, have been under police surveillance. Fearing they were about to leave the city the arrests were made.

WALTHAM TEACHERS TO ASK $400 INCREASE

Waltham school teachers will seek a flat increase of $400 over their yearly salary at a meeting of the school committee of that city tonight. The present salary of the grade teachers ranges from $600 to $1,300, with special instructors receiving $1,100 to $1,450. Charles E. Boyd, music instructor, gets $1,700. Principals receive $2,300 and Charles E. Perkins, superintendent, $3,000.

WORCESTER NOW PAYS FIVE-CENT CARFARE

Worcester, Dec. 1.—A five-cent carfare without transfers was put into operation here today by the Worcester Consolidated Street Railway Company. By the new system passengers may travel from the city limits to City Hall for one fare, but beyond that point an extra nickel is charged. Dean Murder Expose Pleases Governor

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE,
EXECUTIVE CHAMBER.
Concord, N. H., November 28, 1919.

Bert Ford, Representative of the Boston American:

Permit me first to thank you for your voluntary, tireless and well-conceived efforts to solve the Dr. Dean murder mystery which hangs like a cloud over law and order in this State, and which may have an international significance. Such honest efforts by whomsoever done are a public service. Murderers must be made to know and feel to the core that they cannot remain undetected in our State and country. This murder is on someone's conscience. Whose is it? The answer is the business of everyone.

Do not think for an instant that I do not welcome your aid. Again, do not believe I have any disposition to leave any stone unturned. I cannot believe our attorney-general or county solicitor have the slightest disposition to shield anyone or divert any theory. Any rational pursuit of evidence is worth all it may cost in such a vital matter to society.

Federal authorities could not have had any reasonable ground for putting a dictagraph on the attorney-general, if, in fact, they did so, as he says. But nothing personal or partisan can ever be an excuse for not pursuing relentlessly every murder clew possible. The State is anxious to punish the murderer. Of course this is true. The officials admit they are baffled. They cross-questioned by the hour every possible witness. What they can do more they do not see.

You have made the "lights" and the German spy activities seem very plausible to me. I do not believe Mrs. Dean committed the murder. She is now dead. I believe "gunmen" in the employ of German spies did the actual job. But just how we can get hold of the "end of a raveling" at this late date to produce the connecting link in the necessary chain of circumstantial evidence is baffling me.

No one will be spared. There is no desire to "screen" anyone, of course. We mean to study this case and to keep at it. It should never end until the "murder is out," but just what move to make and when to make it is another question. We will appreciate any new light you may get. We take your efforts in good faith. You have become so thoroughly "steeped" in the case that your judgment on new points is invaluable. Stay with us and help.

Let us all be patient bulldogs, and we will win in the end.

Yours very cordially,
(Signed) JOHN H. BARTLETT, Governor.

MILFORD PHONE GIRLS FOIL CRACKSMEN

Milford, Dec. 1.—Miss Josephine Casson and Miss Margaret Quirk, night operators at the telephone exchange, foiled an attempt to rob the local postoffice early today. Twice during the night the band of yeggmen were frightened away by the young women's vigilance.

The suspicions of the operators were aroused shortly before midnight when from their window on the second floor of the telephone building they saw an automobile without lights stop in front of the postoffice in the next block. Five men got out of the automobile, but when they saw the young woman watching them from the lighted window in the telephone building they returned to the automobile and drove off.

At 3:30 a. m. the operators heard a sharp noise from the direction of the postoffice and at once connected it with the visitors early in the night. They sounded a general police alarm, and when the police reached the postoffice they found a window of Postmaster James Lally's office in the rear of the building forced. The forcing of the lock was the noise heard by the operators. On the ground near the window were three blankets and a set of burglar's tools.

The Milford police last week received a tip that the postoffice was to be robbed Saturday night and kept a close watch on the building on that night. It was thought that the "job" had been abandoned and no guard was maintained Sunday night.

TWELVE-RIDE TICKETS IN EFFECT TODAY

Twelve-ride tickets were in general use by commuters today. The five and twenty-five-trip forms for those living within a fifteen-mile radius of Boston were cancelled at midnight. There was no rush reported by any of the railroads for redemption of the older tickets as the commuters had received sufficient warning and had gradually been buying the new ones before they went into effect today. The five and twenty-five-trip forms may be redeemed by any station agent of the railroads until January 1. After that a refund may be obtained only through the general passenger agent.

STEAMSHIP IN CRASH WITH SCHOONER IN STORM

New York, Dec. 1.—An unidentified steamship was reported in collision with the American schooner Elizabeth in a storm 100 miles off the coast early today.

Radiograms were sent out by the steamship but could not be entirely deciphered because of static conditions.

The steamship was believed to be en route for Norfolk.

MIDDLE WEST MAN MAY SUCCEED REDFIELD

Washington, Dec. 1.—President Wilson will appoint a Secretary of Commerce to succeed William C. Redfield, resigned, within a few days, it was announced at the White House today. Intimation was given that the appointee is from the Middle West.

DIES AS WIFE IS GIVING BLOOD TO SAVE HIM

George J. Loughman of No. 11 Belmore terrace, Jamaica Plain, a Roxbury business man, died at the City Hospital just as blood was about to be transfused from his wife's body to his.

It was learned today that the couple were on the operating table, with physicians making the necessary preparations, when Mr. Loughman breathed his last.

Mr. Loughman, who was forty, was manager of the Washington street, Roxbury, store of the F. W. Woolworth Company. He had been affiliated with this concern many years and had worked for them in twelve States, coming here from New London, Ct.

On Friday last Mr. Loughman complained of illness and went home. A short time later he was removed to the City Hospital, where the physicians declared that only blood transfusion would save his life.

Mrs. Loughman immediately volunteered and the operation was scheduled for yesterday.

Besides his widow the dead man leaves two children. He was a member of the Roxbury Board of Trade and other organizations.

HEIR IS BORN TO WIDOW OF 'NED' FRENCH

Former Telephone Girl, Now a Mother, Living With Husband's Parents in Newport

Newport, R. I., Dec. 1.—The birth of a son to Mrs. Edward Tuck French, formerly "Tot" Harrington, a Manchester (N. H.) telephone girl, revealed the fact that she has been making her home here with her husband's parents since his death last April.

Her sister-in-law, Mrs. Julia French Geraghty, whose divorce petition against "Jack" Geraghty was set for hearing in the local court today, is also at the French home.

Mrs. Tuck French's child was born in the Newport Hospital, Sunday morning, and both mother and son are reported to be doing well.

Lillian M. Harrington was married to Edward Tuck French in July, 1918, while he was a student at Harvard. The couple were married at the Church of the Advent following an eight days' courtship. Two days later Mrs. French left her husband, who was then only eighteen, and went to Boston.

A reconciliation was effected at the Copley-Plaza and the couple started on a honeymoon, which was interrupted several times by marital difficulties. On one occasion the bride returned to her home in New Hampshire and at another time she secured work in a Boston millinery establishment under an assumed name.

Following an attempt on the part of the bridegroom, who was known as "Ned," to enlist in the Tank Corps, which was unsuccessful because of his physical condition, the couple went to Chicago, where young French expected to go to work.

Amos Tuck French, father of the young man, an official of the Burlington railroad, placed him in the Cicero, Ill., office. Young French remained there only a few months, his health ruined. Pyorrhea set in, and aided in his demise from uraemic poisoning in April last.

When young French died he left no will because he was only nineteen. He and his wife had existed only on allowances from his father. If he had lived to be twenty-one and had made good, he would have been wealthy, according to promises of his relatives.

The widow accompanied the body of her husband to the Newport home of his parents, in his father's private car. This action was taken after she had received a telegram from Mrs. Leroy French requesting that she make her home temporarily in Newport. The young woman was unable to say whether she would make her permanent home here or not.

ANTI-VIVISECTIONISTS LOSE $40,000 BEQUEST

The New England Anti-Vivisection Society of Massachusetts will not get about $40,000 bequeathed to it by the will of Mrs. Jane M. Willcutt, the full bench of the Supreme Court having today decided that the money belongs to nieces and nephews of her deceased husband. Mrs. Willcutt died on November 1, 1918, at the age of 93, and disposed of a trust fund by will. The Supreme Court says that she had only a life interest in the property of her husband and could not make testamentary disposition of it.

NOTICE TO TELEPHONE USERS

The New England Telephone & Telegraph Company has just completed the installation of improved apparatus in the Metropolitan Division, so that anyone making a local call hears a distinct ringing signal on the line whenever the bell at the station called is rung. One ringing signal indicates that "W" or "M" is being rung; two signals indicate that "R" or "J" is being rung.

This ringing signal, assuring you that the bell is being rung, makes it unnecessary hereafter for the operator to verbally inform you in these cases.

Please notify the operator if you do not hear the ringing signal after passing a local call, or if you do not hear it at intervals when the called station is slow in answering.

Answering your telephone promptly when the bell rings will decrease the possibility of the calling person abandoning the connection before you answer.

CONGRESS NOT EAGER TO DEFER ALLIED LOANS

European Debtors Charged With Increasing Armament Instead of Paying U. S.

By JUSTIN McGRATH,
Editorial Correspondent Universal Service.

Washington, Dec. 1. — Congress, I am informed, will demand full enlightenment from the Treasury Department on the proposal to defer for three years payment of interest on American loans to the Allied governments.

This proposal is generally thought to have emanated from the Allied governments, but there has been such gossip during the past few days that the plan really was the conception of the Treasury Department. This gossip has increased the desire in Congress for full information.

INCREASE ARMAMENT.

Under the act authorizing the loans to the extent of $10,000,000,000, the secretary of the treasury is given authority to defer the interest payments. But, if he sees fit to exercise that right, Congress wants a statement in justification, I am told.

The reason why Congress is disposed to ask a full bill of particulars is the growing belief that some of the debtor nations have no right to ask any such concessions of the United States in view of the expenditures they have been making for the increase of their armament and the extension of their trade.

Information received by individual members of Congress has been that notwithstanding some of the allied governments practically are bankrupt, and others verging on bankruptcy, they have hen spending lavishly to improve their own position to capture foreign trade, entirely regardless of their obligations to the United States.

"To defer their interest payments to the United States," said a member of Congress much concerned on the subject today, "would be simply to furnish the allied powers with the means to increase their advantages over the United States in the competition for world trade.

RAPS CONCESSIONISTS.

"Such financial consideration as may be needed by them to sustain themselves, of course, ought to be shown them. But if it is true, as is being declared to us, that some of them could get along quite well if they restricted their expenditures for armament and for the extension of their shipping, then why should the United States, which is having so much difficulty in relieving its people of the burdens put upon them during the war, make them any further concessions. It is all right to relieve their necessities, but it would be all wrong to increase their advantages unreasonably and to the injury of the people of the United States."

This view of the situation with respect to our foreign loans and further financial concessions to the allies seems to be becoming quite general in Congress. There is an unchanged disposition to do the right thing by our allies, even to be fairly generous to them, but the determination undoubtedly is growing strong in Congress to see to it that the generosity of the United States is not improved upon.

To insure that there shall be no imposition, the inclination is to have full enlightenment on the expenditures of the debtor nations of the United States before there shall be any extension of credits, especially expenditures on armament and shipping.

USING MONEY AS MENACE.

There are some members of Congress who believe that if full information on this matter were given publicity it would constitute a shocking revelation to the people of the United States. One statement made to me was:

"Some of our late allies are using much of the money we have advanced and are advancing to them to construct armament that may be a menace to us and to gain the advantage of us in the markets of the world. We will be fools if we do not inform ourselves fully of just what use has been made and is being made of money advanced before granting any further concessions."

If the treasury plan of deferring payments of interest on the Allied loans should mature, therefore, some very direct inquiries on the subject may be expected from Congress.

Europe Is Using the Billions We Lent Her Against Ourselves

The Congress is to be congratulated if it has determined to look into the ruinous policy indicated in the proposal to defer for three years payment of interest on American loans to allied governments.

These debtor countries are spending the money we loan them in building up armament which may be used against the United States and in developing trade and commerce in competition with the United States.

If they were not doing that, they would not only be able to pay the interest on their loans, but also repay part of the loans themselves.

In allowing them to defer their payments, we are simply giving them the money successfully to compete with us, not only in matters of peace, but also, should occasion arise, in matters of war.

It is a ridiculous, suicidal sort of thing to do that; only an administration as un-American as the present one would think of doing it.

It is unfortunate that power has been granted to the Executive to commit this stupendous folly. When broad war powers were conferred by the Congress, such use was never contemplated.

But it is still within the ability of the law-making branch to require explanations.

These, if insisted upon, will bring into play what may prove to be the saving force of public opinion. It is the people's money which is involved and the people will not be likely to approve its use against themselves.

FIND NEW CLEWS FOR OTTERSON DEFENCE

Counsel for Accused Woman Are Pleased by Autopsy on Slain Man

Concord, N. H., Dec. 1.—Evidence of a "startling" character, corroborating the defence of Mrs. Marion Loines Otterson, charged with the murder of her brother-in-law, Maurice S. Otterson, has been unearthed, according to her attorneys.

The discovery of the new evidence is reported to have been made in the course of an autopsy on the remains of the slain youth by Dr. Francis P. McCarthy of Tufts College, acting for the defence, who examined the body after Dr. George Burgess Magrath had completed his examination for the prosecution.

"We have evidence of a startling and important nature," said Attorney Robert C. Murchie, senior counsel who seemed elated.

Dr. McCarthy before examining the remains, first visited the Otterson home, examing the house and outbuildings and land adjoining. He paid particular attention to a stain found on the jamb of the kitchen door, through which, Mrs. Otterson says, the robbers entered.

The casket of the murdered man was brought to the undertaking rooms of William R. Hoyt, Warren street, and opened. Dr. Magrath was the first to examine the remains. He referred all questioners to County Sollicitor Herbert W. Ranie, who is directing the prosecution of Mrs. Otterson.

Dr. McCarthy, who is assistant professor of bacteriology and pathology at Tufts Medical School, then performed an autopsy for the defence. He also carefully scrutinized the clothing, worn by the murdered youth the night of the crime. A bloody finger print was found on the shirt and a smooch of dirt on the collar. Both of these marks, it was stated, appeared to have been made by a man's fingers.

Dr. Carleton R. Metcalf and Dr. Robert Graves, both of Concord, assisted Dr. McCarthy.

Many believed that the murdered man's watch would be found in the casket, but a search revealed that it had not been buried with the body.

URGES MOVIES INSTEAD OF SERMON

Minister Says Churches Should Use Pictures as "Preacher" Sunday Evenings

Let moving pictures preach Sunday evening sermons in churches was urged today before Congregational ministers in Pilgrim Hall, by Rev. Lester M. Sprague of New York, who gave up his pastorate some time ago, to devote his time to the consideration of adopting moving pictures to churches.

He scored the rigidity of the Massachusetts law which gave exclusive privileges to theatres.

"It is claimed by theatrical managers that the drama cannot be produced in the theatre without some vulgarity in it," said this minister. In this predicament, the church should come forward as a moral leader.

"The church should accept the responsibility of becoming a community centre, and through the moving pictures offer biblical themes and other educational objects to the modern public. Begin moving pictures in the parish houses, and people will soon see their educational value and consent to have them produced in the auditorium of the churches.

"Why, one man told me that after seeing 'The Life of Christ' depicted through moving pictures he learned more in that way in fifteen minutes than he had learned from attending a Bible class in five years."

THREE HURT AS CITY POINT CAR HITS AUTO

Young Woman Seriously Injured When She Is Lifted and Thrown by Trolley

Three persons were injured, a young woman seriously, when an outward-bound City Point car smashed into an automobile at G street and East Broadway, South Boston, today.

The injured are: Hugh Harpinem, No. 487 West Broadway, South Boston; Joseph Goldsmith, four, same address; Helen Bernard, No. 429 East Sixth street, South Boston.

The Bernard girl was struck by the automobile, which was lifted and thrown by the trolley. She was rushed to the Carney Hospital in the police ambulance, where she was found to be suffering from a compound fracture of the right leg.

Harpinem, driver of the automobile, and young Goldsmith, who was riding beside him, were thrown to the street when the car struck the automobile. They were taken to their home suffering from contusions about the head and arms.

Conductor Frank Mazzei and Motorman John P. Jones were in charge of the car. None of the occupants of the trolley was injured.

Blinded by Glaring Headlight, Plea in Auto Death Case

A plea that he was blinded by the reflection of glaring headlights from behind on the windshield of his truck resulted in a finding of not guilty of John A. Burbine, twenty-eight, of Reading, arraigned today in the Woburn Court, before Judge Johnson, charged with causing the death of a pedestrian.

The victim was Edward B. Kimball, seventy-three, also of Reading, a travelling salesman, who was struck by the truck driven by Burbine as he alighted from an electric car at the Farm Hill railroad crossing.

Albert Doucette, who was with Burbine at the time, testified to the glaring headlights on a car behind theirs. He said that Burbine, blinded and unable to see another car which was approaching from the opposite direction, had slowed down to ten miles an hour when the truck hit Kimball.

Burbine, he said, stopped the truck, went back to find Kimball's body, and later surrendered himself to the police.

CRAP SHOOTERS' FINES PAID BY MOTHERS

Clinton Women Settle When Court Turns Sons Over to State Board

Clinton, Dec. 1.—The organized refusal of four women to obey the orders of the local court, which lasted four weeks, broke down today when their sons were about to be taken away from them.

At the end the women gave in and paid fines of $5 each imposed on the boys for being present at a Sunday craps game over a month ago.

Fourteen boys were arrested originally and ordered to pay fines of $5 each. The families of nine of the boys, all of whom were minors, paid. The parents of the other five refused. These boys were Walter Kulis, ten; Frank Baderick, twelve; Stanley Macora, thirteen; Walter Radick, fourteen, and Alex Dimick, sixteen.

At the end of two weeks the women again appeared in court and defied its mandate. Because of the youth of the boys the Court postponed action for another week, but the women failed to weaken.

The State Board of Charities was notified and one of its agents, J. Alfred Belisle of Worcester, arrived here today. The boys and their mothers were summoned to court and a conference was held with Mr. Belisle. Following this conference the mother of Alex Dimick relented and paid the fine.

Walter Radick was then sentenced to ten days in the Worcester Jail and the Court ordered the others to be turned over to the custody of the State Board of Charities. It was not until Mr. Belisle and policemen started to take the boys away that the women gave in. Mr. Belisle characterized their action as the most barefaced defiance of the court he had ever seen.

Vose Small Grand

When one compares this small grand with others its merit as a musical instrument and its beauty and intrinsic worth are pronounced. It shows a difference that is appreciated by those who know genuine piano values.

A small grand's worth as a piano lies in more than looks. Tone and volume must be the first consideration in comparison. It requires the most scientific construction and knowledge of tone production to make a small grand with sufficient volume.

Just these very qualities of tone and volume are what have made the name Vose nationally famous. Terms.

Why Suffer from Shortage of Sugar?

An Open Reply to the District Attorney's Published Statements

St. Louis, Mo.,
November 28th, 1919.

Mr. District Attorney, Boston, Mass.

You are quoted in the Boston (Mass.) newspapers of November 14th as saying that you have been assured in your investigation that Saccharin is a cheap substitute for sugar. Granting for the sake of argument that it is a substitute, surely this substitute is better than no sweetening in the present crisis, and particularly as that substitute serves the purpose equally well, if not better than sugar, as a sweetening agent, since it does the work and is absolutely harmless. Of this you can convince yourself by referring to the literature published on Saccharin, or probably, better still, for the purpose, ask any physician of standing in Boston, and right here we quote from an article written by a prominent Boston physician, which was published in the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal, October 2, 1919, and which reads, "As to Saccharin, I will state, after having constantly used this sugar substitute in some cases for twenty years, that I have never seen it cause any ill effects."

If Saccharin is cheaper than the equivalent sweetness of sugar, that is surely no sin these days. We believe we echo the wish of many of your citizens that it would be a godsend if we had many more of such opportunities to economize in the present cost of living.

If the manufacturers who use Saccharin do not give the consumers the benefit of any saving by its use, that surely is not the fault of Saccharin itself.

As to food value, Saccharin has no food energy value, but it has a food value, because it can be used to flavor food to make the food palatable and appetizing, and without displacing any food. Its intense sweetness precludes any such possibility, as only minute quantities can be used to bring about the desired sweetening. We do not take one or two lumps of sugar in our tea or coffee to get the food energy value in sugar—we want the tea or coffee sweet, that is all. We do not drink a glass of soda for the food energy value in the sugar that might be used to sweeten it—no, we want the soda to quench our thirst, and want it palatable at the same time. Saccharin will make these food products palatable, and therefore it has a food value.

You apply the term "drug" to Saccharin. The commonly accepted meaning and application of that word is to narcotics. Surely you do not class Saccharin with narcotics. When Saccharin is sold for sweetening purposes, it cannot be considered a drug, any more than sugar or salt could be so considered.

You are quoted as saying, "Invalids who may need Saccharin are protected already." How are they protected? If a patient is ordered to use Saccharin instead of sugar he can protect himself or herself in the home, but what protection has that patient who might be thirsty and desire a bottle of soda? You forbid the use of Saccharin in soda. Is it your idea that the patient must drink it unsweetened or do without it? Furthermore, if invalids are permitted Saccharin in their weakened state and it does not harm them, how on earth can the strong and healthy be harmed by its use?

Saccharin is not harmful to the human system, and all of the people of this great free country will be convinced of this some day. Fifty or sixty years ago tomatoes were considered poisonous, due to prejudice or ignorance, not intelligence.

The use of Saccharin should be encouraged—now of all times when there is not enough sugar to go around.

Now, Mr. District Attorney, it costs us considerable money to have statements such as this published in your papers. It costs you nothing to have your statements published. Therefore, we are at a disadvantage, and an unequal fight is not a fair fight, and we therefore must drop out of the publicity phase, and wait until a case you may determine to prosecute reaches the Court; then we will be more or less on an equal basis.

We are told that Boston grocers have been warned that if they desire to handle our Saccharin Tablets they must get a druggist's license. Is there any equity or spirit of fairness in that or is such action justified by your laws? We do not know. It just doesn't look right to us. Will those who are suffering for the want of sugar and who wish to use Saccharin Tablets to sweeten their tea or coffee or other foods support you in that ruling? We doubt it.

However, we desire to say to the readers of the foregoing that there are many grocers in Boston who wish to handle Saccharin Tablets, but are frightened off on this account. The Eastern Drug Company have a small supply, and retailers can get them there, or we will mail two boxes on receipt of 15c, or as many more as you wish at the same rate. Two boxes have the equivalent sweetness of three pounds of sugar; one tablet equals the sweetness of a lump or teaspoonful of sugar; 15 tablets equals the sweetening power of one cupful of sugar.

Respectfully,

JOHN F. QUEENY, Chairman of the Board
Monsanto Chemical Works, St. Louis and New York

THRONGS GREET PRINCE AS HE RETURNS

By International News Service.

London, Dec. 1.—Brilliant ceremonies marked the return home today of the Prince of Wales. Despite rainy weather, great crowds turned out, both in London and at Portsmouth, to welcome the royal heir after his four months' absence in Canada and the United States.

The battleship Renown, bearing the royal party, arrived at Portsmouth during the morning and the prince went ashore at 10 o'clock. After an official reception at the Portsmouth Town Hall, the prince boarded a special train, arriving at the Victoria station shortly after 1 o'clock. King George, Queen Mary, Princess Mary, the American Ambassador, John W. Davis, and members of the government were at the station. King George gripped his son warmly by the hand, congratulating him upon the success of his visit. Queen Mary and Princess Mary kissed him.

The Prince and his suite then entered carriages and drove in semi-state through the central streets of the city and then to Buckingham Palace, where luncheon was served.

There was a double celebration at the Palace, one for the safe return of the Prince, another for the birthday of Dowager Queen Alexandra, the Prince's grandmother.

A noisy greeting was given the returning heir at Portsmouth in spite of rain which soaked the crowds. While the ceremonies were in progress in the Portsmouth Town Hall unemployed ex-soldiers marched through the streets bearing banners appealing to the Prince for aid.

London newspapers expressed deep gratification over the success of the Prince's visit to the United States, commenting upon the warmth of greeting extended him at Washington and New York.

To Have Smooth, White, Soft Skin All Winter

Does your skin chap or roughen easily in this weather, or become unduly red or blotchy? Here is a quick, easy way to overcome the trouble and keep your complexion beautifully white, smooth and soft the winter long. Just get an ounce of ordinary mercolized wax at the nearest drug store and use a little before retiring, as you would apply cold cream. Upon arising, remove the coating with sudsy water. The wax, through some peculiar attribute, flecks off the rough, discolored or blemished skin. The wornout cuticle comes off just like dandruff, only in almost invisible particles. Mercolized wax simply hastens Nature's work. Used as required, it keeps the face constantly free from devitalized scarf skin and only the healthy, young-looking skin is in evidence. It's the best treatment known for weather-beaten, aged, muddy, freckled, pimpled and all unbeautiful complexions.—Advertisement.

CONGRESS AGAIN TAKES UP WORK

Interest Centred in the Message President Wilson Will Transmit Tomorrow

By International News Service.

Washington, Dec. 1.—There was scant prospect of either the Senate or House doing anything of transcendent importance in the immediate future, when the first regular session of the Sixty-sixth Congress began at noon today.

Many Senators and Representatives have signified their intention of absenting themselves until after the Christmas recess.

Interest was centred today in the message President Wilson will transmit to Congress tomorrow. It was reported the President would do little more than touch on the German peace treaty in the message, reserving it for a special one he would address to the Senate alone later on.

MAY AWAIT COMPROMISE.

It was the opinion of Senator Hitchcock, the administration leader, the treaty would not occupy the Senate's attention again until the present negotiations to effect a compromise on reservations took such shape as to render possible some definite and final action.

The meeting of Congress today, while marking the beginning of many busy months of vitally important legislative work, is merely perfunctory. There was the usual deluge of departmental estimates on which House committees will set to work in preparing the sixteen government appropriation bills both branches must enact before July 1, 1820, the beginning of the next fiscal year.

According to established practice the Senate and House informed each other that a quorum had responded to roll-call and then the time-honored custom of sending a committee representing both houses to inform the President Congress was in session and ready to hear from him on "The State of the Nation" was followed.

RAILWAY BILL IS FIRST.

The Cummins railroad bill has the right of way in the Senate. It was made unfinished business just as the special session closed and can only be displaced by the treaty by a majority vote.

The House will insist upon the Esch railroad bill, which it passed toward the end of the special session, it is expected, and temporary legislation to meet the President's plan for restoring the roads to private ownership on or soon after January 1, will probably have to be enacted until the Senate and House can ultimately agree on a permanent railroad program.

The anti-strike and other labor provisions of the Cummins bill are regarded as certain to meet with much opposition, although some Senate leaders express the belief that they will be enacted eventually in such form as to penalize strikers so as to virtually make them prohibitive and arbitration compulsory.

POLICE HORSE, HIT BY MOTORIST, IS KILLED

One of the favorite mounts of the Back Bay division of the police department was shot owing to injuries received in a collision with an automobile on Commonwealth avenue Saturday, and Frank A. Lee, of No. 21 Hollis street, the motorist, was before the Roxbury Court today on charges of operating a motor car to the danger of public safety and failing to slow down at a street crossing. He pleaded not guilty, and the case was continued to Thursday. Patrolman John E. Corbett, who was riding the horse, was thrown but only slightly injured.

ROXBURY MAN APPEARS ON FOURTH COMPLAINT

John H. Mullen of Weston street, Roxbury, appeared in the Roxbury Court today on a continuance of a charge of assault and battery made by Mrs. Victoria Hanlon, of No. 127 Cabot street, Roxbury. This is the fourth complaint made against Mullen by Mrs. Hanlon, the others being larceny, destruction of property and the use of profanity. All are pending. The assault and battery charge at Mullen's request was continued to December 5.

SPANISH BRIDE IS DESERTED IN BOSTON

Husband Forced to Quit New Police Force When Prison Record Is Discovered

How she came to this country as the "war bride" of Grover C. Ladd, whose "resignation" from Boston's new police force followed the discovery that he had served a long prison sentence, and how she was deserted by him after months, during which he contributed nothing to her support, was told to an American representative by the little Spanish girl whom he wooed while doing military patrol duty in Paris.

MET LADD IN PARIS.

Mrs. Ladd's delicately formed features bore traces of the unhappiness which had come to her, and her dark eyes were pathetically lacking in the sparkle which one expects to see in those of a Spanish beauty. For Mrs. Ladd is beautiful, with her great masses of soft, black hair and her deep, dark eyes. With the snatches of English which she knew she tried to explain the conduct of her husband.

"I was working in Paris, as what you call stenographic, is it not? It was there I met him," she said. "He was of the military police, and in a few months he asked me that I should marry him. He always treated me so nice, I thought him a fine fellow and had much love for him."

The olive features clouded at the remembrance of what followed. For after he had brought her to this country, Ladd gave her only $5 in two months and a half. Furthermore, he took the check to her trunk and never returned it to her. "So I have not much of clothes," she said, with a sad little shrug.

So, in spite of her unfamiliarity with the customs and language of a strange country, Mrs. Ladd was forced to seek employment. She obtained a position as usher in a local motion picture house, and has supported herself ever since. Ladd, she says, worked in a restaurant for a time, and then secured a job on the police force.

RECOGNIZED BY PRISONER.

Ladd's bold stroke in becoming a member of the new police force met with success for a time and he continued in his duties as patrolman until in a spirit of bravado he visited the Charles Street Jail with his wife and requested to be shown through that institution. He was recognized by one of the prisoners with whom he had formerly "done time." Shortly afterwards he resigned from the force.

WILL FIX NEW MINERS' SCALE WEDNESDAY

Operators Believe Enough Men Will Return to at Least Resume Output

Chicago, Dec. 1.—While Governors of coal-producing States were holding a conference to make plans to save the country from the coal famine, T. W. Proctor, chairman of the regional coal committee, announced that the government had seized all coal in Chicago.

He instructed the Chicago Coal Merchants' Association to form a committee to distribute coal at the government's direction.

George W. Reed was made chairman of the Coal Merchants' Committee. He announced he would ask that the schools of the city be closed for a month and that the list of non-essential industries had been extended to include packers' plants and clothing manufacturers. He said the Chicago packers had coal enough to maintain steam for fire protection, but not for operation.

The Governors' conference, called by Governor Gardner of Missouri, was in session seven hours. The Governors sent a statement to Dr. H. A. Garfield, Federal coal administrator, and Attorney-General Palmer, recommending that State administrators be appointed.

Government "to Go the Limit" in Rounding "Reds" in Coal Fields

By International News Service.

Washington, Dec. 1.—Strict orders for drastic action against radicals interfering in the coal situation were issued by the Department of Justice today.

All agents of the Department of Justice in Kansas were ordered to proceed to Pittsburgh, Kan., to investigate the dynamiting of railroads there by radicals. The agents were ordered to make summary arrests and put out a dragnet for all suspects.

The bureau of investigation issued a blanket order to all agents to "go the limit" in rounding up radicals who are attempting to interfere in any manner with the operation of the coal mines.

CANADIANS WARNED TO SAVE THEIR COAL

Ottawa, Ont., Dec. 1.—C. A. MacGrath, the Canadian fuel controller, has issued an urgent appeal for economy in the use of coal, because of the strike tie-up in the United States. He stated that Canada is now getting an emergency supply, which will be available for the next few days, but this will be only sufficient for the most essential industries.

HYDE PARK WOMAN GETS ALIMONY DUE 10 YEARS

Although Amy F. Stevens of the Hotel Sunnyside, Hyde Park, has been separated by divorce from her husband for nineteen years, she did not forget that he had failed to pay his alimony for ten years. Mrs. Stevens told Judge Sanderson in the jury waived session of the Dedham Court, that Ernest C. Stevens of Worcester, her former husband, by court direction, was to pay her $2 a week alimony. This, she said, was paid for nine years and then the payments ceased. Attorneys for the couple reached the agreement that the entire debt, past, present, and future could be wiped out by the lump payment to Mrs. Stevens of $800, which was paid, the court assenting to the agreement.

CONNECTICUT RIVER AND B. & M. CONSOLIDATE

Consolidation of the Boston & Maine and the Connecticut River railroads went into effect today following the official discharge of James H. Hustis as receiver of both systems. He was appointed in August, 1916. The decree ending the receivership was signed by Judge Morton of the Federal Court, and the property of both roads was turned back to the corporations. In the decree it was set forth that the two roads were to be consolidated under the new reorganization plan, and that sufficient funds had been assured by the Federal government to discharge all outstanding obligations.

In answer to a statement issued by Alexander B. Bill, candidate for Mayor of Cambridge, Mayor Edward W. Quinn, seeking re-election says that after the election he will allow Mr. Bill access to the books of the city and for as long a time as he wishes. Bill charged that City Treasurer Lehan refused to open his books to him after he brought two experts with him to City Hall to examine them last Saturday.

BAPTIST MINISTERS PRAY FOR VOTERS

Baptist ministers prayed earnestly today in Kingsley Hall for the local voters in the different cities and towns of Massachusetts, who will be called upon to cast their votes tomorrow. Rev. Arthur T. Kempton, pastor of the Broadway Baptist Church, Cambridge, led in these devotions and prayed for divine guidance for the man who would be tempted to stay away from the polls.

URGE NECESSITY OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Presbyterian ministers, meeting today in the Christian Endeavor Building, sent telegrams to President Wilson and Senator Lodge, calling upon them to "get together" and smooth out the League of Nations. "We urge upon you both the necessity of the League of Nations, even in its amended form," said the telegrams.

NEW TRAFFIC POLICE GO ON DUTY

Many Former Service Men in the 128 Especially Trained Officers

Boston's new traffic division of the police department, comprising 128 men, many of them former service men in the army, started today on regular post duty. For the next day or two they will go out with the regular members of the First Motor Squad, who have been directing the traffic for some weeks past, for practical instruction.

For several weeks the men have been undergoing instruction in the handling of traffic at the headquarters of the First Corps Cadet Armory on Columbus, under Colonel John W. Decrow, Major Edward H. Hoyt, drill master, and Major John A. Blanchard.

Today the men received their final instructions from Major Hoyt, who cautioned them they would be likely to meet some opposition from a certain hostile element for a few days, and to deal with it firmly.

The majority of the men have not the regular uniforms as yet. A large part of them wear the new visored police cap with the number of the station attached, the blue uniform and the long olive-drab overcoat. Sprinkled among the number today were three regular patrolmen of long service in the department, who have been transferred to the traffic division, together with four mounted men.

As this is an entirely new division of the police department, the men will be housed in a short time in their own headquarters to be located in the Quincy Market Building, previously occupied by the Ames Plow Company. The quarters are undergoing alterations for their occupancy. When completed there will be 150 lockers, shower baths, lounging and rest rooms and a guard room.

The men will be in charge of Lieutenant Bernard J. Hoppe, who as sergeant was head of the police traffic department previous to the strike. He will be assisted by Sergeants Edward G. Kennedy and William Gaffney, with Sergeant Foley in charge of the desk.

Lieutenant Hoppe said today that the men will have in a short time their own distinctive uniforms, with the traffic insignia on the cap and the sleeve of the coat.

TWO-THIRDS OF HARVARD FUND NOW REALIZED

A total of $10,501,334, about two-thirds of the amount set as the final goal, has been turned into the Harvard Endowment Fund as the result of nine weeks' campaign. The amount needed is $15,250,000. Boston contributions were about $400,000 ahead of those announced from New York. The totals up to noon today follow:

Boston	$4,195,299
New York	3,744,328
Outside	2,561,707
Total	$10,501,334

The class committees which have been conducting a local campaign met today to discuss results and formulate new plans for the week. J. G. Thorp, '79, joined the list of $5,000 contributors today, as did Joseph Lee, class of '83.

OLD SOUTH OFFERS LAND FOR SIDEWALK

Pedestrians may use the archways under the tower of the Old South Meeting House to relieve sidewalk congestion on Washington street if the city accepts the offer of the Old South Association. The subject, an old one, was reopened today by Hale & Dorr, attorneys for the association, who offer for public use the open space under the tower a small but valuable corner of vacant land on Washington and Milk streets and a triangular piece, now fenced, on the other side of the tower. The cost of altering the tower would be paid by the city, which would also build the sidewalk.

VETERAN ASKS CITY FOR $462 BACK PAY

A claim for $462, dating back to the Spanish War, was filed today with the City Council by John Galway, a Boston fireman, who served in the Spanish-American and World Wars. For the first time in twenty-one years the claim has been approved by the head of the fire department, Fire Commissioner John R. Murphy giving it the approval refused by his predecessors. Galway says the money is back pay voted by the city government in 1898 to city employes who served in the war with Spain. He lives at No. 143 Bellevue street, West Roxbury.

FINED $50 FOR SALE OF JAMAICA GINGER

Henry F. Murray of Neponset avenue, Dorchester, was fined $50 in Dorchester court today for selling a bottle of Jamaica ginger. He appealed. To the charge of "keeping for sale," he pleaded not guilty and his hearing was set for Dec. 8. Two merchants were fined $10 each for violation of the Lord's Day law. They were: Arshag Serafrian of Westville street and Costas Kartames of Dorchester avenue.

WANTS CITY TO PAY FOR SMASHED CABINET

Claims for damages during the disorders attendant upon the police strike are still trailing in to the City Council. The latest is filed by Corey H. Wetmore of Reading, who asks $61.20 for a china cabinet. Corey asserts that while his furniture was being moved from Dedham to Reading the truck was held up by rioters in Jamaica Plain and the cabinet smashed.

Back to her home town in her latest Goldwyn release comes Pauline Frederick. Theatre-goers, with all of whom she is a favorite, will see her at her very best in the new vehicle.

Pauline Frederick, who has long been one of the greatest of screen favorites, is to appear in Boston at the Scollay Olympia this week in her latest Goldwyn release, "The Love of Letty."

She is considered one of Goldwyn's strongest drawing cards.

SCHOOL SYSTEM IS BLAMED FOR UNREST

Professor Lincoln Declares Wrong Thinking Produced by Present Teachings

The cause of industrial unrest was laid at the door of the schools by Professor Edmond E. Lincoln of the department of economics of Harvard University, speaking at the American Forum in Faneuil Hall. He declared the present day educational system produced wrong thinking, which in turn was responsible for an unsettled state of labor.

"Our schools have failed to give the fundamental economic principles," said Professor Lincoln. "They have stressed hobbies and have not taught the eternal law of compensation. What they should teach are honesty, loyalty, crime of waste, dignity of work, an open mind, and to become constructors and helpers rather than hangers-on."

Rapidly rising prices were classified by Professor Lincoln as only one of the immediate causes of the industrial unrest. Other factors which he included were unusual advantages enjoyed by labor during the war and politcal manoeuvring for the labor vote and agitation by radical organizations.

That other members of the Forum did not agree with the professor's theory was shown in a vote put by Chairman Charles Franklin Jones on the question, "Is the present labor unrest caused by wrong thinking?" The vote was 166 "noes" to 122 "ayes." In the four-minut ediscussions that followed several speakers disagreed with Professor Lincoln.

Sweet Train Slumber! Jazz on Locomotive Whistle Latest

By Universal Service.

Cape May, N. J., Dec. 1.—Jazz in the whistle of a locomotive—that is the ambition of William Wardorff, engineman on the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad and major domo of the Cape May Express.

"Home, Sweet Home" and "When the Boys Come Home" were played on the engine siren as Wardorff brought his train into the yard here. He manipulated the whistle in musical tones in honor of the return of Cape May soldiers.

As yet the siren does not respond nimbly enough for jazzified syncopation, but Wardorff, who plays fourteen bona fide musical instruments and is reputed to be the only engineer in the country who can play popular airs with a locomotive whistle, has hopes.

Phoebe White of the Anthracite seems destined for competition from the engineman of Jazzland. Omit sleepers.

ALLEGED CROOK CAUGHT BY SPEEDY POLICEMAN

Inspector Alexander of police headquarters proved too speedy for James Montrose, alias James Munroe, aged thirty-five, and of various addresses, and as a result Montrose was arraigned in Central Court today on the charge of being a vagabond. Montrose, the police say, was acting suspiciously in a crowd on Huntington avenue.

Alexander started toward him and Montrose ran. The race continued about 200 yards, and the inspector got his man. He was taken to headquarters where it was found his picture is not only in the Boston rogues' gallery, but in those of other cities, the police said.

8,000 DESERTED ARMY SINCE MARCH

Only 700 of Those Who Have Vanished Have Been Taken Into Custody

Washington, Dec. 1. — War Department officials are alarmed and unable to explain the fact that since March there have been 8,000 desertions from the army. Of this number only 700 have been caught, and while the others are continually being sought, the ultimate arrest of all will be a long and tedious process.

What is principally feared by some officers is that the desterters, to justify themselves, will disseminate "wild yarns" of army life, and that these stories may hurt recruiting, which is the only method left to the army to keep up its standard.

One official said today that of all the reasons that have been suggested the "universal unrest" could best explain the number of desertions. It is said that the great majority of those who have taken "French leave" are young men who went into the ranks after the armistice. They were moved by the glamour of the fact that the American forces won the war and they suffered a "relapse" from their enthusiasm when they found the after-war service so different from that which the real fighters experienced.

A reason which is said to come from only a few men is that they did not like to remain in the service because the duties might force them to fight against their own people in the United States.

"Whatever be the true reasons," an official said "it must be even a more powerful reason than any we know positively."

Quit Laxatives, Purges; Try NR

NR Tonight—Tomorrow Feel Right

It is a mistake to continually dose yourself with so-called laxative pills, calomel, oil, purges and cathartics and force bowel action. It weakens the bowels and liver and makes constant dosing necessary.

Why don't you begin right today to overcome your constipation and get your system in such shape that daily purging will be unnecessary? You can do so if you get a 25c box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) and take one each night for a week or so.

NR Tablets do much more than merely cause pleasant easy bowel action. This medicine acts upon the digestive as well as eliminative organs—promotes good digestion, causes the body to get the nourishment from all the food you eat, gives you a good, hearty appetite, strengthens the liver, overcomes biliousness, regulates kidney and bowel action and gives the whole body a thorough cleaning out. This accomplished you will not have to take medicine every day. An occasional NR tablet will keep your body in condition and you can always feel your best.

Try Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) and prove this. It is the best bowel medicine that you can use and costs only 25c per box, containing enough to last twenty-five days. Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) is sold, guaranteed and recommended by your druggist.

Feel Tired, Achy-All Played Out?

ARE you dull, tired, achy all over—bothered with a "bad back?" Do you lack energy for the day's work? Evening find you "all played out?" Don't worry so much about it! You can't expect to feel up to par if your kidneys aren't acting right. The kidneys need help occasionally just as the bowels need help. A dull, nagging backache; soreness, lameness and sharp, sudden pains are all symptoms of neglected kidneys. You may have headaches and dizziness, too, and perhaps some annoying kidney irregularity. Don't wait for more serious troubles. Get back your health and keep it! Use Doan's Kidney Pills. They have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

Read These Boston Cases:

East Fourth Street (So. Boston)

Fred LeCarn, blacksmith, 646 E. Fourth St., So. Boston, says: "I gladly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills, for I know they can't be beat for kidney trouble. I keep this medicine on hand, and at times when I over-strain or take cold my back aches and I have soreness over my kidneys. The action of my kidneys becomes irregular, too. Doan's have never failed to relieve the backaches and put my kidneys in good shape."

Lexington Street (East Boston)

Mrs. W. Hartery, 150 Lexington St., East Boston, says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills off and on for some time when I have had attacks of backache and soreness over my kidneys and they have always helped me. At such times my kidneys didn't act right, and to make matters worse my head ached. Doan's were sure to entirely remove those symptoms by strengthening my back and kidneys."

East Fifth Street (So. Boston)

Miss G. L. Nolan, 438 E. Fifth St., So. Boston, says: "Every time I caught cold, it settled on my kidneys and put my kidneys out of order. At such times my back was lame and painful and I could scarcely get about the house. I felt tired to death, and the irregular action of my kidneys was most annoying. I suffered with headaches, too. I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Daly's Drug Store and they soon relieved me of the attack."

NO package of Doan's Kidney Pills is genuine unless it bears the maple-leaf trade-mark and the signature — "Jas. Doan."

Bartlett Street

C. A. Hofmann, foreman of picture frame company, 114 Bartlett St., gave the following statement on July 14, 1914: "Being on my feet continually caused weakness in my back that was very painful and annoying. I thought my kidneys needed attention, and as Doan's Kidney Pills were strongly recommended, I began their use. I didn't have to take this mdicine long before I was quickly relieved of all trouble. This experience leads me to have strong faith in this remedy, and I highly recommend it."

AGAIN PRAISES DOAN'S

On February 4, 1919, Mr. Hofmann said: "I have the same good words for Doan's Kidney Pills as I had when I first endorsed them. I heartily recommend this medicine to other kidney sufferers."

Medford Court

John Kelley, 2 Medford Court, says: "I keep Doan's Kidney Pills on hand all the time, and I know they are all that is claimed for them. My kidneys were weak and whenever I took cold it caused me to have severe backaches. On stooping over, sharp pains took me in the region of my kidneys, and it was a task for me to straighten again. My kidneys didn't act right, either. Doan's Kidney Pills soon put a stop to the aches and pains in my back and regulated my kidneys. I always depend on this medicine now for relief when I have any signs of kidney trouble."

more needy families of Greater Boston. Several students at Wellesley and Radcliffe colleges, Faelten Piano School, The Whitney Studios of Platform Art, Rose Garrity School, Bryant & Stratton Commercial School, Emerson School of Oratory, Mme. Marie Paporello Dancing School, and MacDonald Commercial School have agreed to assist.

Other organizations whose members will help are Women's Trade Union League, Boston Telephone Operators Union, Boston Park and Recreation department, Chatterbox Club, The Film Club, and Daughters of Isabella. In addition a number of individuals, including several school teachers, have volunteered to give their services on one or both days. Some have offered to work for half a day.

WHITNEY GIRLS ACTIVE.

The proceeds of this double tag day will make it possible to feed several hundred more families than last year, it is confidently hoped.

Among the young women from the Whitney Studios of Platform Art who will sell tags to help get food for the kiddies, are Misses Dorothy Hunt, Lola French, Barbara Clark, Lucy Clark, Allix Irvine, Hazel Griffin, Verda Frost, Beatrix Barrington, Ethel Eagleston, Edith B. Porter, Doris Sleeper, Marjorie French, Ednah Wideman, Elizabeth Russell, Edna L. Ferguson, Mrs. Joseph Leszkiewiz and Mrs. Julia B. Findley.

The Whitney Studios is a distinctive school organized for the purpose of giving practical psychological training for the development of ability along the lines of platform art in its various phases, and also to aid in personal development. The instructors in oratory and music are Foss Lamprell Whitney and Edwin M. Whitney. There are evening as well as day classes. Companies for Chautauqua and Lyceum entertainments are arranged.

A big time is expected tomorrow night at the entertainment and dance in Odd Fellows Hall, Malden, in aid of the basket fund. Miss Pauline Mason, a clever dancer of that city, is conducting the party and expects a substantial sum will be obtained. One of the features will be the tickle-toe dance. Miss Mason will sing this number and Eleanor Lee will lead the dance.

BIG PROGRAM ARRANGED.

Others appearing in the number are Eileen Carroll, Dorothy and Edna Masterton, Katherine and Evelyn O'Neil, Dorothy Woods, Mildred Carnes, Marie Devir and Helen O'Brien. Miss Mason and her sister "Patsy" will appear in another number. There will be a banjo solo by Nelson Bishop and readings by Chester Hoover and Lena Crowell. Miss Miriam Larkin, who has volunteered her services, will be at the piano. The entertainment will be from $ to $30 and general dancing will be indulged in afterward until midnight.

Mayor Edward W. Quinn of Cambridge has donated $25 to the basket fund. Mr. Quinn writes: "Enclosed find check for twenty-five dollars for the splendid campaign you are conducting in the interest of the poor widows and children, for your fifth annual Christmas Basket Fund. This is splendid work and the appeal that you have made should meet with hearty response from all of our citizens. I have personal knowledge of the many appeals that have been made here in Cambridge for assistance and your work has made many a family happy on Christmas. Commending you for this very splendid work, I remain."

Ten-year-old Virginia Whitehead sent a dollar with the hope "that some child will be made happy on Christmas." Many thanks, Virginia—every dollar helps.

NAVY FORCE GIVES $20.

The staff and office force of the United States navy recruiting station at No. 51 Cornhill, and the navy hut on the Common, have generously contributed $20 to the fund. From this Christmas. My husband has left me with four children and I am not well and cannot go to work to get them a Christmas dinner. Will you send me a basket? My poor babies had nothing for Thanksgiving but bread and tea. Will you please, for God's sake, have a heart and think of us? My children are four, three, two years, and the baby ten months. So you see it is pretty hard to work and leave four babies alone. Please do not forget us.

Commander Nichols down to the yeogirls, each did his or her respective bit to help increase the amount which will be expended for the needy poor.

Most of the men have in the past at this season of the year been on board some ship which has helped the poor children in whatever district they chanced to be. The Christmas spirit is ever present with them and they have given entertainments, dinners and presents to those in need.

Although now on a civilian basis, the yeogirls felt that they were not to be outdone and contributed to the cause, as they are interested in whatever the Navy is doing and are always glad to aid any worthy cause. Even the elevator girl gave a donation, as she is vitally interested in whatever concerns the Navy or its welfare. The collection was due in a large measure to the zealousness and interest of Chief Gunner's Mate "Jim" Delaney of Malden, who has recently written a book on his adventures in various German prison camps and who was the first American prisoner of war captured by Germans during the late war. He went about and spoke for the unfortunate poor. He is in charge of the Navy recruiting hut on the Common. The whole thing has the hearty endorsement of Neal R. Nichols, the genial commander of the recruiting station, and has personally contributed to the amount raised.

MORE PATHETIC LETTERS.

Some of the pathetic pleas for a Christmas basket follow:

Dear Christmas Basket Editor—I am a poor girl fourteen years old. I have two sisters and a brother younger than myself. I am in poor health and go to the Massachusetts General Hospital every week for treatment. It is very hard for my parents to pay for medicine for my father is sixty-eight years old and cannot work steady. He makes so little and everything is so expensive that we often go to bed half fed. On Thanksgiving Day we sat around an almost empty table like we always do, but we were more sad and unhappy that day, because everyone had something better to eat than their everyday meal, and we didn't. Dear Christmas Basket Editor, will you kindly send us something good to eat on Christmas Day? We hope that you will have us in mind, for it means so much to us.

Dear Sir—I am writing this letter to tell you I have twelve children and we are very poor. The youngest is one year old. Three of them have just come home from the hospital. My husband makes small pay, and as the children are all small, it is very hard to get along. Today we will have no dinner. Won't you please try and send me a basket for Christmas, so that we will be able to have a good dinner on that day?

Dear Sir—I hope you will send me a basket on Christmas morning, as we do not expect to have anything this Christmas. My father has been dead four years and my mother is not able to work. I am eleven years old, the oldest of four girls and two boys. One of my sisters has been sick in bed two years. We would be very thankful if you would send us a basket.

DESERTED BY HUSBAND.

Dear Boston American—Will you please think of my children

Y. D. DEEDS TOLD BY CHAPLAIN ROLLINS

"The Yankee Division was the cleanest and finest body of men to cross the ocean in the American Expeditionary Force," declared Chaplain Lyman S. Rollins, one of the former chaplains of the 26th Division, speaking in St. Paul's Church, Newton Highlands.

"I, with the Rev. Fr. O'Connor, had a much better chance to see the men and to know them by mixing with them. We knew what they really were and what they were made of. We knew them even better than their superior officers."

Speaking of the swearing and rough talk among the men, Chaplain Rollins said: "At first there was a lot of it. We tried many peculiar ways to rid the men of this habit. Once I started my sermon by using all the words that I had heard the men use, both swearing and slang. I asked them how they liked it. It had the desired effect.

"The greatest of credit must be given to the Red Cross, Salvation Army, Y. M. C. A. and other organizations that sent representatives overseas to care for the men. And likewise the wonderful work of the American women that remained at home should never be forgotten.

As to the faith of the men, Chaplain Rollins said: "When they went to France they were without the proper realization of God and as far as their religion was concerned they were a bit careless. They had not been fighting long before they found that they were in the care of God—and their faith increased."

In closing he said: "Only by an increase in faith will the country get through the present period of social unrest."

50TH YEAR IS BEST IN FOOTBALL

Many Players of All-American Calibre Came to Front in Season Just Past

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

When, on Saturday afternoon, the good left toe of Captain Fitzpatrick of Boston College, and the good right toe of Tackle King of Annapolis brought to their schools well-earned victories over Georgetown and West Point, respectively, the college football season of 1919 came to an auspicious ending.

The season marked the fiftieth anniversary of the birth of this great gridiron sport. But in respect to thrilling play, unexpected outcomes and large attendances, none of the past fifty years is to be compared with the season just closed.

The multiplied popularity of the game is traced by many to after-war reaction. Such may be the case. But if football interest was so aroused, it was kept afire by the above-mentioned qualities.

The season was marked by such forward strides in the development and employment of aerial play as never was thought possible. Forward passes of unusual deception and so planned that successful opposition was possible only through woefully weakening rush line defenses, constituted the stock in trade of a majority of successful elevens.

Development and improvement in the art of dropkicking also played its important part. No distance seemed too great for many kickers to essay field goals, and successful tries from points more than forty yards from opposing goals proved far from uncommon and often turned the tide of battle. Fully twenty important contests were decided by the work of dropkickers and in many instances the winning points so produced came when but a few seconds of the game remained.

DARK HORSES TO FORE.

In the course of the season a numbere of colleges, heretofore unknown, have assumed positions in football's forefront, while institutions that figured in football's beginnings and continued to rank high in the football world, have been found wanting when competing with schools of virtually no football history or tradition.

Centre College of Kentucky, furnishes perhaps the most noteworthy example of the latter. Via the comparative score method of reckoning, Centre is 32 points better than Princeton or Harvard and 39 points better than Yale, for Centre defeated West Virginia, 14 to 6, and West Virginia trounced the Yale-conquering and Harvard-tieing Princeton team, 24 to 0. Comparative scores, however, do not always tell comparative strengths, but, in the case of Centre there is much in its record of victories to warrant placing the team well above the so-called Big Three. Indiana, which recently defeated Syracuse, was one of Centre's victims, and in the course of its season it rolled up 485 points to the eighteen scored against it.

MANY STRONG ELEVENS.

Similar examples of a sudden rise from relative football obscurity to football fame are furnished in the records of Boston College and Detroit University, for while each has been defeated, both number among their victims several of the stronger teams of the country.

But excellent football was not confined to hitherto unknown college teams. In the East, Syracuse, Dartmouth, Colgate, Penn State, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Washington and Jererson, Pittsburg and Lafayette, all gridironed excellent arrays of football talent, and, in several cases a singe setback, often the result of temporary conditions, prevented them from gaining clear titles to the topmost position. Princeton, Harvard and Yale boasted strong elevens, but in no case did their teams rise to pre-war standards. In the West, similar conditions prevailed, with Notre Dame, Illinois and Ohio State standing out as the three best teams; Chicago, Minnesota and Nebraska falling a bit short, and Michigan falling by a considerable margin in equalling its pre-war record.

DIFFICULTIES OF TASK.

With the ending of this glorious season comes the time when certain daring souls venture the task of selecting from football's roster the outstanding stars of the game and forming them into All-America or All-Sectional teams. Proponents of the All-Sectional idea often contend no one person is qualified to name an All-America eleven, owing to his inability to see all players in action. The contention is a good one, and this season, as in the past, the writer has called to his aid certain friendly-disposed football authorities in the several sections of the country to aid him in his work. Their reports, as well as the expert accounts of the games, have been studiously gone over, and the result is the All-America teams which appear on this page. (Incidentally the All-Sectionalists make no bones of placing on their All-Sectional teams men whom they have not seen in action.)

Because of the number of players whose work has featured the season just ended, the task of selecting the best has proved trying. In many cases decisions were of the hair-breadth variety. This has been par- never did a finer array of talent perform in these three positions.

ON RECORDS OF THE YEAR.

The selections have been made on the records of the men for the entire season and not—as often is the case—on their work in a single important game. To have won a position the player must have shown both excellent knowledge and exceptional ability in playing the position, and must have proved himself equally capable both offensively and defensively. No consideration has been given to claims of ineligibility on the part of certain players. The fact the man has played the major portion of the games in which his team has engaged is the only guide on that point.

H. Miller of Pennsylvania and Higgins of Penn State are the ends selected for this All-America team, and they stand out as the greatest pair of wingmen in the country. Both are veteran players who combine thorough knowledge of end play with a remarkable ability to put such knowledge into practice. Both are hard, sure tacklers, adepts at sizing up an attack and turning it into the line before it gets well under way, and each can handle a forward pass with rare ability and carry the ball through a broken field. An average total gain of less than five yards a game has been made around Miller's end of the Pennsylvania line this season, and Higgins' work in this respect has been equally noteworthy. Kirk of Notre Dame; Swanson of Nebraska, Urban of Boston College; Williams of Brown and Desmond of Harvard, are the strongest rivals for the wing positions.

HENRY, GREATEST TACKLE.

Henry of Washington and Jefferson and Murphy of Dartmouth are the selections for the tackles. The former, weighing 235 pounds, possessing tremendous speed for his weight and strength above the average, has shown an uncanny ability to fathom opposing attacks, and stands out as the greatest tackle of the year. It was his work that made possible his team's victory over the powerful Syracuse eleven, and in other contests he figured equally conspicuous. Murphy weighs fifteen pounds less than Henry and but slightly underranks him in ability.

The Dartmouth man is favored over West of Colgate on the result of their duel in the Dartmouth-Colgate game a few weeks ago. Murphy had much the better of the battle, and it was his work that enabled Youngstrom to race through and block Colgate punts. Murphy handled both West and Watkins on these occasions, and twice after so doing raced forward with Youngstrom to block the kicks. West, who was All-America in 1916; Cody of Vanderbilt, another 235-pound giant; Coughlin of Notre Dame and Harrick of West Virginia, both of whom figured conspicuously in the success of their great teams, are the runners-up in the All-America tackle fight. They are favored by the slightest possible margin over Higgins of Chicago, Bigler of Princeton and several others.

OUTSTANDING GUARDS.

The outstanding guards of the season are Alexander of Syracuse, Applegfam of Illinois, Pixley of Ohio State, Youngstrom of Dartmouth, Clark of Harvard, Galt of Yale, Smith of Notre Dame and McGraw of Princeton. Alexander is undoubtedly the best guard of the year. He is a seasoned player, weighing about 200 pounds. He has been the bulwark of the Syracuse line all season and the only player to sucessfully handle the almost unstoppable charges of Gillo, the powerful Colgate fullback. Applegfam, possessing similar qualities, has served the Conference champion Illinois team in a similar manner, and he is given the second position by a small margin over Pixley of Ohio State and Youngstrom of Dartmouth, who is the punt-blocking king of the season. Smith of Notre Dame, perhaps the lightest guard of the season, as he weighs but 159 pounds, but has outplayed every guard who has opposed him, and narrowly misses out, being selected over Galt and Clark for the third team.

The 1919 season has brought out more crackerjack pivot men than any single year in football's history. Weaver of Centre College, who weighs but 170 pounds, wins the position on the first team. He is a sure passer and, unlike many centres, continues in the play after he has made the pass. On the defense he plays a roving position, and in every game has displayed a knack at quickly estimating the enemy's intended point of attack and throwing himself at the right time and place to make the tackle or break up the play. In addition he has established a record at kicking goals from touchdowns, having scored 46 times on 47 attempts.

ROBERTSON CLOSE UP.

Harry Rowertson of Syracuse but slightly underranks him, while pressing close behind comes Carpenter of Wisconsin, the leading centre in the Conference; Heaphy of Boston College; Cunningham of Dartmouth; Bailey of West Virginia and Callahan of Yale.

Bob McMillin, another Centre College player, wins the quarterback berth on the accompanying team. Rare generalship, exceptional individual ability, are carrying the ball through a broken field; working at one or the other end of a forward pass; punting, a dropkicking and defensive play, are all included in his football repertoire. He is the high scoring player of the highest scoring team, and is equally reliable in all departments of play. It was his field goal in the last few minutes of play in the 1918 game deciding the Kentucky State championship that gave Centre College the victory.

McMillin has many rivals, Boynton of Williams; Devine of Iowa; Alexander of Colgate; Strubing of Princeton, and a dozen others possessing all-round ability and the qualities of a real field general are included in the list.

HIGH SCORING BACK.

Rodgers of West Virginia, the highest scoring backfield man of the year; Harley of Ohio State, the great all-around halfback of the Western Conference, and Gillo of Colgate, one of the greatest line-plungers of all time, make up the remainder of the backfield of the first team. The work of each of these three is too well known to the average football fan to require recounting.

Yet in each case they win their positions from any number of really great backfield stars. Jim Robertson of Dartmouth, Casey of Harvard, Weldon of Lafayette, Oss of Minnesota, Trimble of Princeton and Roberts of Centre are their closest rivals, and win positions on the second and third teams.

Each team, as assembled, possesses all the qualities necessary in giving it the utmost offensive and defensive power, both in new and old style play, and so slightly would they vary in ability were they to meet that the victory would be a toss-up.

Harvard Eleven Not to Play New Year's Game on Coast

There is no chance that the Harvard football team will be the one that will play a Western team in Pasadena, Cal., New Year's Day. The statement by S. A. Simons, chairman of the football committee of the Pasadena Tournament of Roses Association, that the Harvard eleven was the Eastern college football team most likely to play on the Pacific Coast New Year's Day is discredited by the fact that the Harvard team has disbanded.

WEST END COUNCIL K. C. FIVE UNDER WAY

West End basket ball fans are enthusiastic over the showing made by the West End Council, Knights of Columbus, basket ball five since the Knights of Columbus Basket Ball League originated some few weeks ago.

John H. O'Brien, former Exeter and Technology star, is coach of the team. Charles Doherty is the manager.

The council plays basket ball every Tuesday night in St. Joseph's Hall, Charles street, West End.

RENAULT BOXES TOM COWLER AT NEW BEDFORD

By JACK CONWAY.

Jack Renault, latest candidate for Jack Dempsey's crown, will continue his hectic ring spurt when he meets Tom Cowler of New York in a twelve-round bout at the Mercury A. C. of New Bedford tonight. Since he decided to become a champion, Renault has engaged in thirteen bouts. He has won ten of them by knockouts. He grabbed two decisions, while in his other start he got a draw.

At New Bedford a couple of weeks ago Renault flattened Jack Rooney, who hails from the coal fields of Pennsylvania, in a few chapters. The new heavyweight championship aspirant will meet plenty of opposition tonight. Cowler is not a champion, but he has had plenty of experience and can defeat most of the upstarts in his boxing class.

There is a busy week ahead for Boston fans with shows billed at the Armory A. A., Fenway A. A. and Commercial A. C. The Triple A will conduct its show at the Grand Opera House tomorrow night. Johnny Downes of South Boston and Harry Carlson, Brockton lightweight, are booked to exchange punches in the feature contest of twelve rounds. It is the most important tussle arranged between local lightweights in many months.

Downes is one of the bright stars among the younger element in the lightweight class. He has all the assets that go to make a blue ribbon performer. He showed enough stuff in his frolic with Frankie Brown of New York at Lowell on the holiday to make his admirers believe he will defeat Carlson.

The Brockton lightweight is a classy performer as he proved when he recently outpointed Benny Valger at Bridgeport.

Paul Doyle did not make an idle boast when he declared he believed he had an even chance to knockout Young Kloby at the Fenway A. A.'s show at Mechanics Building Wednesday night. Doyle's record proves he is one of the hardest hitting welterweights in the East. How many boxers have ever knocked Terry Brooks down? Yes, Terry is easy to hit, but he seldom is sent to the canvas. When he met Doyle at the Arena, Tony Palozolo's champion not only knocked Brooks down several times but he had him holding on in the last frame.

Study Doyle's two bouts with Walter Butler. The latter was never a champion, but he is strong and can take a beating. Until he met Doyle for the first time, the Revere boxer had never been knocked off his feet. Doyle performed this stunt. In their second encounter, Doyle had Butler out on his feet in three rounds. Butler managed to last another session after which he was obliged to retire from the contest.

NEW GOLF CLUBS CRYING NEED IN BOSTON

Big Waiting Lists at All the Local Organizations, With Small Chance to Get In

By ROBERT E. HARLOW.

Patience is a virtue, but it is really wondrous to behold the patience exhibited by a large number of persons who allow their names to remain upon the waiting list of a golf club, hoping that some day enough regular members will move from the city to allow them to sit in the wonderfully comfortable arm chairs and read the club magazines.

This patience may be explained, if not excused, in instances in which a person is eager o obtain membership in a club for other than a golfing purpose, but when a man wishes to play golf, he has little initiative if he puts his name on a club waiting list and then waits by the month and the year before he begins his game.

Such a procedure is as exhausting as waiting to get off the first tee on a Sunday morning at Van Cortland Park public links in New York, where an army of 100,000 romps over the fairways in the passing of a single season. The strategy of many of the Van Cortland Sunday morning golfers, in order to get away, would certainly shame a man who waits and wonders, while his name remains in the nineteenth position upon the exemption list of a private club.

TAKES DOCTOR'S ADVICE.

Over in New York, when the doctor tells a patient he must play golf or die, the patient usually plays golf. And in cases where the necessity is not as urgent, a New Yorker who decides to take up golf, generally does so in a hurry. He may put his name upon the waiting list of a number of clubs, but he does not allow the matter to rest there, for in New York as elsewhere, the election of a new member is quite a ceremony.

The New Yorker is apt to look up a number of other gentlemen who also have either been advised by their physicians, or voted themselves, in favor of golf, and yet have no immediate prospect of finding a number of lots upon which they can realize their ambition to play. And the first New Yorker says to his other unfortunate brothers:

"Let us have a golf club of our own."

And they do.

NEW CLUBS SPRINGING UP.

New golf clubs are springing up in the Metropolitan district as fast as new hotels. When a group of friends induce the New York, New Haven and Hartford or the Pennsylvania, to build another station along the lines of their suburban traffic and call it "Newton" or "Oldtown," they influence the railroad schedule maker by telling him the place is important because a golf club is located there.

Neighborhood golf is becoming more popular in New York and it is an unattractive community indeed, within a 45 minutes' from Broadway, that does not support a local nine holes at least.

Speaking of golf congestion — it exists in Boston. Practically every club in the district can boast of a long line of strangers outside the clubhouse door. They want to get in, but under present conditions it is impossible. Courses are overcrowded on holidays and Saturday afternoons, and in justice to present memberships it would be unfair to take on added burdens.

ESTABLISHED MANY YEARS.

Most of the golf clubs in the Boston district have been established for a number of years. It was only recently that this list of clubs was not adequate to take care of all who wished to play golf, but few new clubs have been established in comparison to the increase in players and the result is a shortage of playing space as acute as the sugar shortage, if not as widespread.

At least two groups of men in the Boston district have the same idea as the New Yorker, heretofore referred to. These groups are going to have clubs of their own. It is safe to say that if all the people whose names adorn waiting lists were assembled, material would be found for at least a third new club.

The Story of the Emerald

THE emerald has been known since early times, both in Europe and in certain parts of the Orient. Its name may be tracked back to an old word which appeared in Greek as smaragdos, mentioned by Theophrasius three hundreds years before the Christian era.

She had never heard, except very vaguely, of reincarnation. She could not have the inestimable comfort, therefore, of believing—and how beautiful and satisfactory it is—that he and she had been together in a former life.

All through those busy, peaceful, clean, early-to-sleep and early-to-rise vicarage days that seemed so very far away she had been secretly engaged to be married. There was nothing hole-and-corner about it all. It was too sacred and wonderful a thing to discuss, even with her bosom friends.

Those sunny days at Parame were very good. The Luxminsters were cheery, kind people, cousins of her mother's. Their villa, of stereotyped French design, with much tortured wood about the turrets and veranda, faced the sea. Lord Luxminster put in a high old time, as he expressed it, with his round, fat laugh, on the remains of a fine income, the greater part of which had been spilt on the race-course.

With the eagle-eyed assistance of his fond and faithful wife, who was supposed to have been a barmaid at a hotel at Newmarket, and whose much-powdered face was still very pretty and good-natured, he lived just within his income by sticking to French watering places nearly all the year round.

A Simple Life

He made himself the leading spirit among the equally poor English contingent, bathed twice a day, fished as though for a living, endeavored to control a slow but certain increase in weight by placing lawn tennis like a grampus, and settled down to bridge with grim earnestness and timid declarations every evening for small stakes. Mrs. Harling was, in her lazy, easy-going way, very fond of Minnie Luxminster, whom she called "Bunny" because she ate like a rabbit.

The fact that she was not "one of us, poor dear thing," amused Mrs. Harling, who would always rather herd with people out of her class, "because, you see, my dear, their point of view is so naive, and they say such funny things about the Ten Commandments."

It was natural that she should patronize her relation a little, but she made no effort to correct her occasional lapses into hotel English. She told Helena that to do such a thing would be as foolish as to put water-colors on a too florid oil-painting. On the contrary, she took a quite kindly delight in leading "Bunny" into labyrinthic mazes of English grammar, and then in running metaphorically away to watch her extricate herself as best she could, while tears of laughter streamed down both their faces. For Lady Luxminster had no side, boasted only of the fact that she was a true wife and a good cook, and was able at any moment to laugh at herself.

As she often said at dinner, with Arthur Luxminster beaming at her from the head of the omelette-loaded table, covered with bottles of vin ordinaire—"and damned good stuff, too, b' jove!"—she would have taken her old man had he been the guard on the London coach, whom, oddly enough, he exactly resembled, even to the lips that were all cockled as though from frequent horn-blowings.

"Bunny" was very proud, openly very proud, of playing hostess to the Duchess of Harwich. Her only regret, she said, was that there were no English servants in the villa to whom she could say, "Where is her Grace?" She had never seen Helena before, and she watched her with frank admiration and openly expressed delight.

A Kind Affection

"My word, Arthur," she said, the night Helena arrived, "don't she positively bloom! Really, she gives me a queer sensation about the heart every time I set my eyes on her. She makes me ache to go over to her and wrap her in my arms and put her darling head on my breast. Oh, not because I think she needs sympathy—though God knows she ought to, given over to that snake-charmer fellow, Harwich, poor pet! but because I feel I want her for my very own, to mother and look after."

When a Girl Marries

New Serial by Ann Lisle

"YOU may not be getting anything," said Virginia thoughtfully. "But you're giving an impression of prosperity of success. And in Jim's game that helps tremendously."

"That doesn't sound very solid—very conservative, Jeanie. It's just gambling, isn't it?"

"Perhaps," retorted Virginia. "But it's all right if it works. Men make fortunes gambling in stocks, and nowadays unless you have a fortune you're just nobody. You watch that little Cosby woman climb to a place in the best society. She has money; she'll entertain the best people and presto! there you are."

"You mean presto—there she is!" I replied. "You know I haven't a social ambition in my make-up, Jeanie. I like a home — and home life. Kiddies and the country for them to grow up in."

Virginia turned and studied me critically for a moment.

"Perhaps you're right," she said at last. "Perhaps there's more happiness that way. But Jim doesn't see it. I really don't, either. Perhaps I'd have been happier if I'd been more like you. But Jim's like me. He isn't simple in his tastes. He likes beauty and luxury. He and the Cosbys are after the same things. They'll travel together for a while."

"Are you trying to warn me against Valerie Cosby, Jeanie?" I asked. "You've dragged—mentioned her twice in the last few minutes. Did you notice anything last night?"

After I had said the words I could have bitten my tongue out. Here I was revealing to Jim's sister that I was jealous of him—that I didn't trust him. That belittled Jim—it shamed me. For a second Virginia stiffened visibly. Her Harrison pride was up in arms. Then what I liked even less happened. A look of pity blotted all the coldness from her face. And when she spoke her kindness, together with the way she picked her words, seemed to be forecasting something I didn't even want to think about.

"Valerie Cosby is a beautiful woman—young and spoiled. She wants admiration, and her husband is delighted when she gets it. So, of course, Jim has to be attentive. But you're clever, Anne, and young and pretty. If you'll make yourself attractive, dress well and—play the game Jim's way—and stop turning over the pennies, there's no doubt you can hold Jim. Oh, Anne, don't you see? Women throw away love because they think they don't want it enough to try to keep it. Of course, they're too proud to try."

"Thank you, Virginia," I said gravely. "I see. I'll stop turning over the pennies. . . . I see."

"Money buys everything, Anne—don't forget that," cried Virginia, suddenly stiffening to her usual mold. "A man—worthy, respecting—knows how to make it. And a woman—worth loving—at least, the sort of woman who gets love—knows how to spend it. To spend it gracefully."

"I see," I said again.

Suddenly I wondered if Pat Dalton had always known how to make money.

It wasn't until Saturday morning that I had any way of guessing whether or no a week-end spent with the Cosbys would be pleasant.

I woke Saturday morning with that queer feeling of uncertainty that generally greets one in a strange bed. The room was steeped in gray, yet the hush of early morning wasn't over the world. Lifting myself on one elbow I peered at Jim's watch dangling from its chain looped over the headboard of his bed. Nine. Not early a bit.

I got up and tip-toed into the bathroom. Then I found out that instead of our room being the dark and dreary inside room I had thought, this was a gray and desolate day. Cold rain slanted down.

Woman Sick Two Years Tells How She Got Well

Miss G. I. Baird of 30 Glenville ave., Allston, Mass., writes: "I have been sick almost two years, had four doctors with little or no relief. I was growing thin every day, went from 138 to 111. I was so discouraged I didn't know what to do. One night, about three weeks ago, I picked up a paper and saw your Dr. True's Elixir, Family Laxative and Worm Expeller, advertised. I made up my mind I had worms, and the next day bought a small bottle of Dr. True's Elixir. I was surprised at the result, stomach worms some a finger long, so much slime, that looked as though it was just the skin of worms. The day before I took Dr. True's Elixir I thought I should go wild with the crawling in my stomach. I feel like a new person, all my friends say I look so much better. I wouldn't have believed anyone could feel so much better in such a short time. I can't give your medicine praise enough."

Signs of worms: Offensive breath, swollen upper lip, sour stomach, deranged stomach, occasional gripings and pains about the navel, pale face of leaden tint, eyes heavy and dull, twitching eyelids, itching of the nose, itching of the rectum, short, dry cough, grinding of the teeth, red points on the tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever. Dr. True's Elixir, The Family Laxative and Worm Expeller, is sold by ALL DEALERS.

The Wicked Marquis

By E. Phillips Oppenheim

CHAPTER XXVI.

DAVID THAIN, a few hours later, lounged in a basket chair in the one corner of his lawn from which he could catch, through the hedge of yew trees, a furtive glimpse of Mandeleys. By his side stood a small coffee equipage and an unopened box of cigars; in the distance was the vanishing figure of the quiet-mannered and very excellent butler with whom a famous registry office had endowed his household. It was an hour of supreme ease. An unusually warm day was succeeded by an evening from which only the warmth of the sun had departed, an evening full of scents from flowers and shrubs alike, an evening during which the thrushes prolonged their music until, from somewhere in the distant groves at the back of the house, a nightingale commenced, like the tuning up of an orchestra, to make faint but sweet essays at continued song. It was as light as day, but there were stars already in the sky, and a pale, colorless moon was there, waiting for the slowly moving mantle of twilight. David Thain was alone with his thoughts.

They had started somewhere in the background, in the first throb and excitement of life, in the moment when his lips had framed that horrible oath which held him now in its meshes. Then had come the real struggle, years of brilliant successes, the final coup, the stepping in a single day on to one of those pedestals which a great republic keeps for her most worshipped sons. Always it seemed to him that there was that old man in the background, waiting. At last had come the question. Yes, he was ready. He had come to England a little protesting, a little incredulous, always believing that those fierce fires which had burned for so long in the grey-haired, patient old man would have burned themselves out, or would become softened by sentimental associations as soon as he set foot in his native place.

David's awakening was complete and disconcerting. The fury of Richard Vont showed no signs of abatement. He found himself committed already to one loathsome enterprise—and there was the future. He looked down gloomily at the magnificent pile below, with its many chimneys, its stretching front and far-reaching wings, and some echo of the bitterness which raged in the old man who sat and watched at its gates found an echo in his own heart. He remembered the amusement with which that subtle but absolutely natural air of superiority, on the part of father and daughter alike, had first imbued him.

Their very kindness, the frank efforts of the Marquis, as well as of Lady Letitia, to lead him into some channel of conversation in which he could easily express himself was the kindness of those belonging to another world and fearing lest the consciousness of it might depress their visitor. And with his resentment was mingled another feeling; not exactly acquiescence—his American education had been too strong for that—but admiration for those inherent gifts which seemed to bring with them a certain grace, carried into even the smaller matters of life.

Perhaps he exaggerated to himself their importance as he sat there in the soft gathering twilight, poured out his neglected coffee and still played with his unlighted cigar. The rooks had ceased to caw above his head. Some of the peace of night was stealing down upon the land. In the windows of Mandeleys little pinpricks of light were beginning to show.

Watched for Her

The iron hand-gate which led from the park into his domain was suddenly opened and closed. The way led through a grove of trees and through another gate into the garden. He turned his head and watched the spot where the figure of his visitor must appear. It was curious that from the first, although his common sense should have told him how impossible such a thing was, he had an intuitive presentiment as to who the visitor might be. He laid down the unlighted cigar upon his table and leaned a little forward in his chair. First he heard footsteps falling softly upon a carpet of pine needles and yielding turf, slowly too, as though the movements of their owner were in a sense reluctant. And then a slim, tall figure in white—a familiar figure! She had already passed through the gate, however, and was moving towards him across the lawn.

"Lady Letitia!" he exclaimed.

She nodded.

"Please don't look as though I'd done anything so terribly unusual," she begged. "What a pleasant spot you have chosen for your coffee!"

David's new treasure proved fully equal to the occasion. From some unseen point of vantage he seemed to have foretold the coming of this visitor, and prepared to minister to her entertainment. Lady Letitia sank into her chair and praised the coffee.

"So much better than the stuff we have been trying to drink," she told David. "I must bring dad round one evening. He loves good coffee. How beautiful your trees are!"

"Your trees," he reminded her.

She shrugged her shoulders.

"It seems ages since I was here," she remarked. "Sylvia was away when we were down last, and dad and Colonel Laycey were annoyed with one another about some repairs. You don't want any repairs, do you, Mr. Thain?"

As a Woman Thinketh

By HELEN ROWLAND

When Is a Woman Most Interesting to Men?

Copyright, 1919, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

WHEN is a Woman most interesting to men?

Bernard Shaw won't tell!

No, no, no, no! He refuses to "make a fool of himself"!

Oh, very well! Then, here goes!

One doesn't mind being foolish, once in a while—just for art's sake!

A woman is most interesting to ANY man

Just before the first kiss!

When she isn't trying to be interesting.

When she is interested—in somebody else.

When another woman has begun to bore him.

When she has brains enough to make her forget that she is beautiful——

And beauty enough to make HIM forget that she has brains!

When she is old enough to know a lot about men—and still young enough to care a lot about them.

When she is clever enough to understand all a man says—and not clever enough to say anything which he doesn't understand.

When she is sufficiently experienced not to be easily shocked and sufficiently spirituelle to appeal to his higher nature—and sufficiently human to appeal to the other ninety-eight per cent. of him.

When she cares just enough to respond if he is interested—but not enough to be interested, if he doesn't respond.

When she is fond—but not too fond.

When she is talking about HIMSELF—his latest book, his newest play, his business acumen, his cravats, his muscular prowess, his golf score, or his soul!

And, above all,

When she is LISTENING to him!

Elderly People Have A Daily Health Problem

Stomach muscles and digestive organs slow to act as age advances

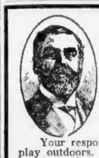

MOST people find the years slipping by without realising it, until suddenly confronted with the fact that they can no longer digest everything they would like to eat. It then becomes their daily task to avoid what they know to be chronic constipation.

When exercise and light diet fail it will be necessary to resort to artificial means. Strong physics and cathartics, however, are not advisable for elderly people. They act too powerfully and a feeling of weakness results.

What is needed is a laxative containing effective but mild properties. This is best found in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin which is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin. It acts gently and without griping, and used a few days will train the digestive organs to do their work naturally again without other aid.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has been on the market since 1892 and was the private formula of Dr. W. B. Caldwell, who is himself past 80 years of age and still active in his profession. It can be bought at any drug store for 50c and $1 a bottle, the latter containing enough to last even a large family many months. It is a trustworthy preparation.

In spite of the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, there being over 8 million bottles sold each year, many who need its benefits have not yet used it. If you have not, send your name and address for a free trial bottle to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 511 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

LOCAL MARKETS SHOW EARLY STRENGTH

United Fruit Strong on Exchange; Mutual Divide Features Curb

Fairly firm at the opening and with most of the active issues showing gains, the Boston market did not change in price aspects to any extent during the morning. It lacked breadth throughout that period and the price range was narrow.

United Fruit was the feature for strength, advancing nine points before noon. Other strong issues were Boston & Maine, Parish & Bingham, Gray & Davis, Swift & Co. and Mexican Investment. They were up from one to more than two at their highest.

Stocks to advance fractionally included Eastern Manufacturing, Elder, Ventura, National Leather, Nipissing and North Butte.

Among weak issues were Boston Elevated, Copper Range, Mohawk, Quincy and United Drug common. They receded from one to two points. Smaller declines were shown by Massachusetts Gas, United Shoe, U. S. Smelting, American Sugar, Swift International and Davis Daly.

Coppers were weak as a class, but not active. While showing group strength, motor accessory shares were not as active as usual.

CURB MARKET ACTIVE.

Trading on the Boston Curb was active during the forenoon and that market was fairly strong. Mutual Divide was the feature, being the most active stock and a fraction higher. Other issues to advance were Imperial, Arizona Silver, Silver Reef and Hendee. Among those to recede were Boston & Montana. Neither gains nor losses were material.

Building in New England

Although labor is so highly paid and materials so costly, building operations in New England have been extensive this year. Up to November 28 the 1919 total of expenditures was $205,484,000 compared with $142,562,000 for the corresponding 1918 period, according to the F. W. Dodge & Co. statistics. But it should be remembered in making any comparison how much more it costs to build now than before the war.

City and Country Loans

Essex County has awarded a loan of $22,000 dated Dec. 1, 1919, and payable April 1, 1920, to Cape Ann National Bank of Gloucester at 4.65 per cent. discount plus $1 premium.

Newport, R. I., will receive bids until 5 p. m., Dec. 11, for $40,000 5 per cent. Bath road improvement bonds, dated Dec. 15, 1919, and payable $1,000 on Dec. 1, 1920-1959.

West Springfield will receive bids until noon, Dec. 3, for $20,000 4½ per cent. paving school bonds, dated July 1, 1919, and payable $2,000 July 1, 1920-1929, $40,000 4½ per cent. school bonds, dated July 1, 1919, and payable $2,000 July 1, 1920-1939 and $20,000 4½ sewer bonds, dated July 1, 1919, and maturing $1,000 July 1, 1920-1939.

UNITED FRUIT ADVANCES 10 POINTS

Motors, Oils and Steels Are Higher at End of Morning

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at noon, but below their morning highest. There was enough profit taking in the second hour to reduce gains. United Fruit was one of the strongest issues on the list, showing ten points gain at noon. General Motors had been up more than ten but had lost most of the advance. Motors, oils, steels and equipments showed class strength. Atlantic Gulf was the feature among shipping stocks, being up more than five points at its highest. New York Air Brake was especially weak, receding six points. Trading was active, transactions totalling about 560,000 for the first hour.

The call rate was 7 per cent. In the foreign exchange market, sterling again went below $4. Demand opened at $3.98¾.

PRICES SOON ADVANCED.

Irregularity as to price changes marked the market at the opening, with both advances and declines averaging small, but there was speedy improvement and within a few minutes gains were the rule. At the end of an hour the market was rather strong. General Motors, which had opened with a fractional loss, was up over ten points, while Crucible not only recovered a three-point loss sustained on the first sale but showed more than seven points gain. There was a better tone to both motors and steels in early trading. Oils and equipments were steady, there was a little better demand for rails, especially for Union Pacific, and most sugars advanced a little. Coppers obtained some support, although the metal market is unfavorable. Anaconda, Chino and Utah Copper were higher. U. S. Steel and Union Pacific sold ex-dividend. The road quickly recovered all of its disbursements. Pierce-Arrow made a five-point gain during the first hour and other especially strong issues were United Fruit, Texas Co., Retail Stores, Mexican Petroleum and Atlantic Gulf. They gained three or more points each. Canadian Pacific was weak, receding five.

NEW YORK BANK STATEMENTS.

The increase in the national bank reserve as shown by Saturday's clearing house statement was encouraging, but did not foster hope of any immediate reduction in money rates. Speculation is sure to be discouraged until after interest and dividend disbursements, due at the end of the year and totalling almost $300,000,000, are provided for. The decrease in loans last week was not large, amounting to but $8,193,000 and leaving a total of $5,167,419,000.

In its latest statements the New York Federal Reserve Bank reports a gold reserve decrease for the week of November 28 of about $22,000,000. Among bills discounted those secured by government war obligations increased $52,000,000, and other discounts increased $19,000,000. Bills on hand totalled $987,983,410, compared with $877,960,000 for the previous week.

More Demand for Zinc

The zinc market is reflecting increased demand on the part of consumers, stocks held by producers having been greatly reduced within six months. Up to early last Summer stocks had been accumulating for about a year.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, Dec. 1.—Irregularity marked the cotton market opening. First prices were from 7 to 15 points higher on near months, to 15 to 35 points lower on late positions. Liverpool sold late deliveries. After the call December was under pressure and sold 18 points under Saturday's close, but the late months held steady. At the end of 20 minutes they were about 20 points net lower. Opening prices were: December, 38.00; January, 36.20; March, 34.00; April, 31.95.

An important feature of its service will be in furnishing expert trade information covering foreign business.

"It will aim," it is stated, "through close co-operation with local New England banking institutions, to provide the manufacturers and merchants of New England with necessary facilities for conducting their foreign transactions through their local banks. This co-operation with local banking institutions should assist the manufacturing and production sections of New England to develop their foreign business, without their being compelled to seek outside assistance."

ADMITS PLOT TO ROUSE ANARCHY IN EAST

Federal Agents Probe Confession of Ohio Radical Involving Lawrence Man

Lawrence, Dec. 1.—A sweeping probe is being conducted by the Department of Justice and Lawrence police officials into the startling declaration of a man who gives the name of Ignatz Glut of Akron, O., who confesses to the authorities that he came here to spread "Red" propaganda.

The alleged program in which Glut states he was asked to take a part is one of anarchy, marking officials for death. As far as the police can learn Glut has not performed his part in Lawrence, and because of his failure his life, he claims, is in peril. In a state of fear he laid bare the whole scheme to the police heads at the station following strange actions on the part of men said to be engaged in the movement of anarchy.

PLANNED ASSASSINATION.

Glut came to Lawrence from a Red headquarters to meet a man named Christopher, according to his confession. Christopher was to meet him at a gathering of radicals and was to have given him instructions. Glut told the city marshal that he had met the so-called Christopher in Akron, O., several months ago, and that the latter showed Glut courtesies, later telling him confidentially about a certain Bolshevik program. The proprietor of the house where Christopher and Glut lived, named Hadsky, secured him a job with a tire concern where many Russians worked.

"I was compelled to join a Socialist union," said Glut. "At the meetings anarchy was the main issue and Bolshevism was advocated. The police kept constantly routing us until we had to meet at members' homes.

"At Lakeview, just outside Akron, we were addressed by a Russian professor and urged to join in a plan to overthrow the government and assassinate the officials. At these meetings members were chosen to go to different places to spread the doctrine of Bolshevism. At one of these meetings I was picked to go to Lawrence and they gave me my fare of $35. Glad of the opportunity to escape, I took the money and came to Lawrence. I met the man named Christopher in a Valley street pool room. He told me that he was to speak at the radical meeting here.

AFRAID OF HIS LIFE.

Because of the manner in which he was avoided and watched by Christopher, Glut became afraid of his life. He came here from Poland five years ago, residing first in Boston and later in Lincoln, N. H., and Newmarket, N. H. He never lived in Lawrence but visited here, he states. An all day search of radical haunts Sunday failed to reveal the whereabout of Christopher. The authorities at Akron were notified and action will be taken by them regarding the story told by Glut. A man answering Christopher's description was seen leaving the city Saturday. Glut was taken to Boston by the Department of Justice officials for further examination.

HONOR FOR FR. McGRATH ON 50TH ANNIVERSARY

All Somerville paid its respects to the Rev. Christopher T. McGrath, rector of St. Joseph's Church, Somerville, on the occasion of the venerable priest's celebration of the golden jubilee of his pastorate. Fifty years ago he was appointed pastor of the Union square, Somerville, parish.

At the Community Thanksgiving song service, held in the Somerville High School, Mrs. Phoebe Carey, a non-Catholic, voiced the sentiment of the entire city when she presented resolutions congratulating Father McGrath on the completion of his 50th year as a pastor.

HELEN MENKEN, who plays a leading role in "Three Wise Fools," says "poor, poor old stage" is a dumping ground for all kinds of people.

D'Annunzio Expects to Issue His Own Specie

Fiume, Oct. 1 (by mail).—Despite the fact that several hundred thousand lire has been contributed to the d'Annunzio army by Italian cities, the poet's chief of cabinet is now working on a plan for the issue of money by the temporary government to pay for its supplies and help to relieve the pressing financial worries.

It has not been announced what form this issue will take, but it will probably be in crowns, for the poet will conduct his finances through the Austro-Hungarian Bank, which he took over some days ago.

This money, of course, will be as worthless as the white money issued by the late Soviet government in Budapest, and this Bela Kun method of finance spells ruin for the Fiume merchants.

BURGESS-LANG COMPANY OFFER AN INVESTMENT

Burgess-Lang Co. are offering a new $350,000 issue of F. L. Horton Corporation 8 per cent cumulative preferred stock, the issue being redeemable as a whole or any part, at the option of the company, at any time at $120 a share. Dividends are payable March, June, September and December first.

The F. L. Horton Corporation was organized to take over the business of the F. L. Horton Manufacturing Co., which was engaged for many years in the manufacture by patented process of brake linings and clutch facings. The company's plants are in Boston and Worcester and it has been a most successful concern.

Of this offering and the corporation it is said: "The nine months' profit and loss statement ending September 30, 1919, shows a net profit before Federal taxes were deducted, in excess of $137,000. Among the company's customers are numbered such well-known automobile and accessory companies as Dodge Brothers, Packard Motor Company, of Boston, Cadillac Automobile, Hupp Motor Car Corporation and Warner Gear Company.

"The product of the company is recognized throughout the entire automobile industry as being the best of its kind. For a period of three years the company has been oversold without selling effort on the part of the management. The new corporation will be able to largely expand its fast-growing business in every direction by a progressive and active sales policy. The net assets of the company are in excess of $140 per share of the preferred stock.

BURY AUTO VICTIM AT SOMERVILLE TOMORROW

The funeral of Mrs. Margaret Winn, sixty-five years old, of No. 32 Henderson street, Arlington, who was fatally injured by an automobile on Massachusetts avenue, at the foot of Henderson street, early Saturday evening, will be held tomorrow afternoon, at 12:30 o'clock, in the home of her daughter, at No. 11 Banks street, Somerville. Burial will be in Oak Grove Cemetery, Gloucester. Mrs. Winn was attempting to cross the avenue when an automobile driven by C. Edward Powers, seventeen years old, of No. 23 Central avenue, Arlington, struck her.

Pig Iron off Embargo List

The British government has taken pig iron off its embargo list, Washington is informed by Consul General Hollis at London. This country is concerned as it produces more than half of the world's entire output. National Bank of Commerce figures show that American production increased from 13,789,242 gross tons in 1900 to 39,054,644 tons last year. The Great Britain annual output is about 9,000,000 gross tons under normal conditions.

Fuel Oil in More Demand

Fuel oil is in more demand than it was even during the war, the present output of Atlantic Coast refineries being at the rate of 12,000,000 gallons a month, compared with $8,000,000 gallons during 1918. Much of the increase is due to the substitution of oil for coal as a fuel in manufacturing plants.

HELEN MENKEN WANTS KIDDIES AND HUSBAND

Charming Actress in "Three Wise Fools," Reflects Ambitions of Her Life

By FRED J. McISAAC.

With rain drops dripping from a broad-brimmed hat and the grimy smear of labor on a rain-stained face, I was greeted into the dressing room of Helen Menken at the Tremont Theatre, with as gracious a smile and as hearty a welcome as if I had been all dolled up for the auspicious occasion.

Helen Menken is a fragile brunette with a captivating smile, a decidedly animated face and as keen a sense of things other than the theatre as I have ever met.

Helen was born in New York city, and boldly affirms that she glories in that fact. Her histrionic career has been somewhat meteoric. Helen has no ambition to become a star, because Helen affirms with absolute sincerity that it takes something more than the perspicacity of managerial publicity to place a star upon the horizon of permanency, and she feels conscious that her development in her chosen profession has not reached the zenith of maturity, to allow her to even think of stellar honors at this time. In fact, Helen does not believe in the star system at all.

HAD TO WORK HARD.

"I am a great believer in the stock system, just like you used to have here in Boston years before I was born, but of which I have read so much about. Acting today is not taken with the serious import that characterized its existence in bygone days; today the poor old stage is utilized as the dumping ground for all kinds and conditions of people, who are either too lazy to work for a living, are making capital out of a family scandal, a good figure, or to gratify the ambition of some relative who has more money than good common sense.

"Personally, I have had to dig and dig hard for whatever little progress I have made in this profession, and if I thought that I would have to submit to some of the conditions I believe are exacted for recognition in this profession, I believe I would quit tomorrow.

HER GREATEST AMBITION.

"What is your greatest ambition, Miss Menken?"

"I want a good clean chap as a husband, have a couple of kiddies and live a nice wholesome life forever afterwards."

That sentence sounded the keynote of the reason of her charming performance of Sidney Fairchild in "Three Wise Fools." She reflects in her own life and ambitions the motives and aims of the character she so charmingly visualizes in the Austin Strong comedy.

"May I add just a word for John Golden, my manager? He has done a great deal for me by giving me the opportunity of playing a good part, and I feel that I owe him a word of thanks upon every occasion to express the same, so if you are going to publish this little interview, please be sure and say this word for Mr. Golden." Here it is, Helen.

COUNT AND HIS HOSTS SHAKEN UP IN CRASH

Jesse Coates of Coatesville, Penn., of No. 40 Ocean avenue, Lynn; Mrs. Coates and Count Bogden Lubeki of Poland, their guest, sustained minor injuries when their automobile narrowly avoided a collision with one driven by Nathan H. Mats, No. 9 Rock avenue, Swampscott, in Ocean avenue, near Atlantic terrace.

Coates' car ran into a mail box and overturned it, and run up the lawn of the home of Herbert F. Walker at No. 214 Ocean avenue, crashing into it and damaging it to some extent. Mr. Coates received a cut over his left eye and Mrs. Coates and Count Lubeki were badly shaken up.

WANT CONSULS SENT TO IRISH REPUBLIC

At a meeting of the Sons of Irish Freedom held in O'Connell Hall, Hibernian Building, Roxbury, resolutions were adopted calling upon all Congressmen from Massachusetts to vote for the motion recently introduced by Congressman Mason of Illinois.

This motion is that the sum of $14,000 be appropriated for the upkeep of ministers and consuls to the Republic of Ireland, which is up for a public hearing before the committee on foreign relations December 12. John J. Hartigan, president of the Massachusetts Branch of the Sons of Irish Freedom, presided.

MILFORD CHURCH HOLDS SERVICES FOR HEROES

Milford, Dec. 1.—Trinity Parish held a memorial service in the church in honor of the Rev. Walton S. Danker, formerly its rector, who was killed in France, and in honor of Nelson G. Maynard, whose name is marked on the parish flag by a golden star. The Rev. Dudley Tyng, rector, and the Rev. Frederick H. Danker of Worcester, brother of the late rector, spoke.

UXBRIDGE COUPLE, 62 YEARS WED, CELEBRATE

Uxbridge, Dec. 1.—Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah McAuliffe, Oak street, have been wedded sixty-two years, and the happy event was observed with a family dinner at the home. Mr. McAuliffe is aged ninety-two years, and attends to his duties like one forty years his junior. His wife is six years his junior and does her own housework.

AUTOIST FLEES FATAL CRASH AT MEDWAY

Milford, Dec. 1.—Lee Woodward, aged forty-five, a resident of North Franklin, was instantly killed when he was struck by an automobile while driving a horse and buggy on the Medway road, two miles from Medway Centre. The driver of the automobile fled without making known his identity.

Woodward received a fractured skull at the base of the brain and his left leg was broken in two places above the knee. His buggy was only slightly damaged. This fact leads the police to believe that he was thrown from his team and then run over by the automobile.

The body was found by a crew of an electric car that was passing the scene of the accident, some time after it had happened. They called the police and Medical Examiner W. J. Clarke viewed the body. The horse and team were found about thirty yards from the scene of the accident.

The only clew that the police have that may assist in locating the autoist who struck Woodward is a pieces of glass and a rim of one of the headlights.

VATICAN CHOIR GIVES BRILLIANT PERFORMANCE

The Vatican Choir, conducted by Monsignor Casimiri, returned for a farewell concert in America and drew a large audience to Mechanics Hall last night.

The very wonderful technical equipment of this chorus awakened as much admiration as on its first visit. The ability to sing long passages without accompaniment of any kind is unique with the Sistine singers. Casimiri himself conducts with the same brilliancy and dexterity with notes, without a baton, without even a tuning fork.

The choir returns to Italy next Wednesday. Its tour of America has been a success.

Frieda Hempel, the coloratura soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company, gave the Sunday afternoon concert in Symphony Hall.

Miss Hempel's popularity is growing rapidly and her singing is always remarkable for faultless taste and beauty of tone.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN DECEMBER 1, 1919 BOSTON

Kerensky Suggests a Plan to Solve Russian Enigma

At a great crisis in the World War in 1917, and just as we were entering it, the name of Alexander Kerensky was in the mouth of more people than any other single man in the world. He had just been made Prime Minister of Russia, after the Czar had been overthrown with his pro-German court and his treasonable pro-German generals.

Kerensky was known throughout the world as a bitter, uncompromising opponent of the German autocracy. He found the Russian army utterly demoralized. Treachery at the Czar's court and at headquarters in the field had betrayed the Russian armies into German traps, had deliberately missent equipment into regions where it was useless, leaving the brave Russian soldiers with empty hands and bared breasts against rifle, machine gun, cannon and flying machines.

Nothing but a great ideal could make them continue these sacrifices—greater than the sacrifices made by any of the warring nations. President Wilson, as the spokesman of the American people just entering the war, undertook to supply that ideal. He told them that America was entering the war, not for aggrandizement, but to "make the world safe for democracy." The leaders of the other Entente nations publicly endorsed President Wilson's appeal to Russia.

Kerensky accepted this view of the objects of the Entente Powers and attempted to make the Russian people believe that the Entente and President Wilson were sincere.

Then came the discovery of the secret treaties involving all the Entente nations except the United States, which showed that their objects in fighting were just as imperialistic and dominating as those charged against Germany.

Kerensky thereupon urged that there should be a conference of the allied nations for the purpose of restating their war aims and of giving the Russian people a new assurance that they were not being asked to fight for the substitution of one group of imperialistic nations for another group. Kerensky warned the allies that he could not make the Russian people fight unless some such assurance were given—a statement corroborated by Americans in Russia at the time.

But the allies declined to accept Kerensky's suggestion for a conference. In the meantime the Germans had cunningly declared themselves willing to give ample assurance that they had no base designs on Russia.

When the news came to the Russian people that the allies would not restate their war objects and that the Germans were willing to do so, poor Kerensky was left in a hopeless dilemma. With a heavy heart and a mind full of doubt, he decided to continue the war as long as the Russian soldiers would fight. But they immediately refused to fight and the Bolshevik party overthrew Kerensky, who went to England.

The Bolshevik party first made a military peace with Germany and then proceeded to destroy Germany's fighting power by propagandist attacks. Ludendorff and Hindenburg and the great military German leaders all agreed that it was the Bolsheviki who found their tendon of Achilles.

Now Kerensky is being kept a practical prisoner in England because, as a patriotic Russian, he says that if he went back to Russia he would be a Bolshevik so long as foreign soldiers stood on Russian territory and the agents of the old, corrupt, czaristic regime were being aided by the allies. But Kerensky has recently given a public statement concerning Russia which is worthy of attention. He says in substance:

First—That Russia cannot be conquered by outside military force. No nation from Charles XII. to Napoleon has ever met anything but disaster in such attempts.

Second—That the Bolsheviki, as a majority party, cannot be thrown out of office until foreign interference with Russian internal affairs ceases, and the normal disagreements over internal policies begin to divide the Russian people into political parties.

Third—That the Bolshevik party has been kept in power by the Russian people because it is considered the most energetic, uncompromising champion of the Russian revolution and opponent of the old regime seeking through counter-revolution to restore itself to power.

Fourth—That within six months after it has become clear to the Russian people that the imperialistic class among the allies have abandoned their attempts to dictate the kind of government the Russian people shall have, there will arise parties in opposition to the Bolsheviki with a less radical economical program which, supported by the peasants, will overthrow the extreme radicals.

Fifth—That the greatest sabotage ever committed in the history of the world is now being committed by the allied powers, with the United States, as usual, trailing along, in the blockade of Russia and the isolation from the starving world of the industrial and economic power of nearly two hundred million people and the vast resources of the greatest contiguous territory ever possessed by the white race.

Other experiments to solve the Russian problem having signally failed, it might be wise to try the Kerensky suggestion.

YOUR LIFE IS YOUR DOCTRINE

What is the doctrine you are setting forth to those you meet?

Oh! you do not deal in doctrines; you leave that to the ministers.

Whether you know it or not, the words you speak to those whom you meet if put together and side by side, day in and day out, would surely amount to a doctrine if you could see them as a whole.

Is your conversation full of faith in mankind generally, or are you always picking out the dishonest streaks in your associates?

Do you try to drop a constructive thought in your associates?

Do you try to drop a constructive thought somewhere every day?

Or are your moments and your days spent in prying out others' secrets and sowing seeds of discord and ill feeling among those around you?

Is it possible for you to see good in those you dislike?

If not, why not?

Because your personal feelings are stronger than your sense of justice.

Don't let your personal, sensitive feelings become warped by envy or jealousy.

It is always a realization of something lacking in one's own life which prompts criticism in a mean way of another.

People can read a lot of things without opening a book.

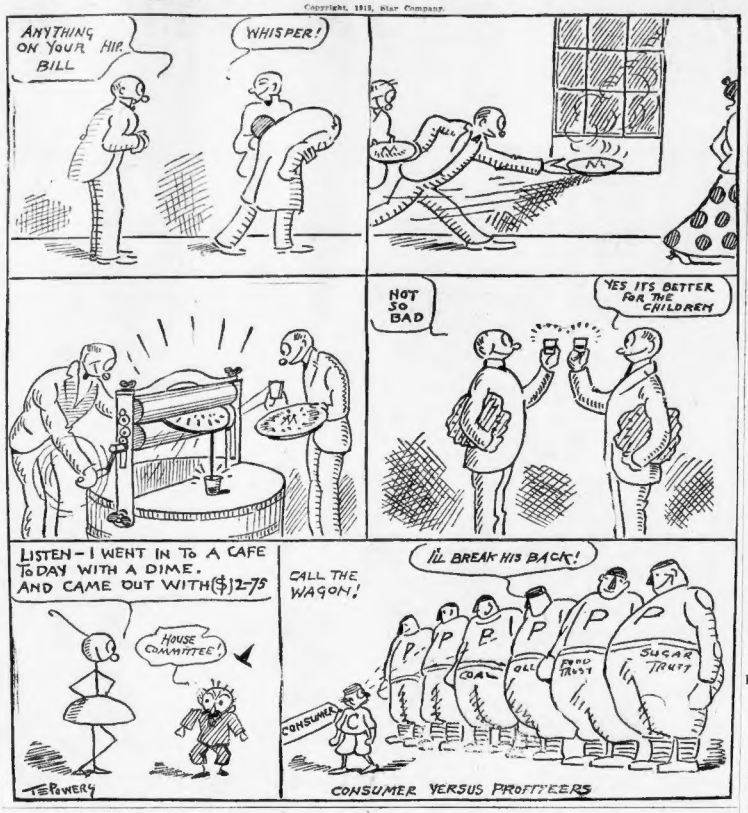

Don't rattle the bones of your own skeleton in the closet.

More Truth Than Poetry

LINES TO CARRANZA

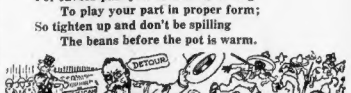

By S. E. KISER

COME, come, old man! Please stop the killing;
Call in your bandits from the feast;
Can't you perceive that you are spilling
The beans six months too soon, at least?
If we must now make war upon you
And your dark dastards for your sins,
We'll have it all cleaned up, doggone you,
Before our next campaign begins.

CALL off the daily depredations,
You surely can't misunderstand;
Unless you lessen the temptations
We'll have to make you show your hand!
Be good till April—there's a reason—
Consent to have a brief delay;
We'll hand you something in due season.
You'll know it when it comes your way.

CALL in your cutthroats, entertain them
With bullfights, movies, anything;
Invent some reason to restrain them
Until some morning in the Spring.
Please cease compelling us to hiss you,
We want to save the war for use
Next Summer as a campaign issue;
Why won't you see, you silly goose?

COME on, old man; be good, look pleasant;
You know the game; you've played it, too;
Pass on the hint and for the present
Find harmless little things to do;
For favors past you should be willing
To play your part in proper form;
So tighten up and don't be spilling
The beans before the pot is warm.

WHY WOMEN GO MAD

"You used to say I reminded you of a woodland sprite," she complained. "You never tell me any more that I'm as beautiful as the dawn or that my eyes are translucent pools in which you see reflections of Elysian vistas."

"I know," he replied, still studying the market page. "Since I have to give so much of my attention to hard facts I seem to have lost my imagination."

A LETTER TO K. C. B.

DEAR K. C. B.
WHERE I lived
WHEN I was little
I HAD a range of mountains
ON WHICH to play.
AND TWO running creeks
RIGHT THROUGH the yard
AND BACK of the pasture.
WAS A Forest Primeval.
AND THERE were hundreds
OF BOY and girl cows
AND I had a horse.
AND HE was red.
AND HIS name was Jim.
AND I can remember
WHEN I went away.
THAT JIM ran along.
INSIDE THE rail fence.
AND HIS coat glistened.
IN THE morning sun.
AND HE held his tail
LIKE A lovely plume.
AND I have judged
FROM WHAT you write.
THAT YOUR play days
WERE JUST like mine.
AND WE'RE grown up now.
AND EVERY morning
AT BREAKFAST time.
A LOT of city folks
READ WHAT you write.
AND YOU cheer them up.
AND THEN at lunch time.
FOLKS OUT of the city.
READ AND are cheered.
AND AT dinner time.
THE R. F. D.'s read it.
AND THEY are cheered, too.
SO THAT all day long.
SOMEBODY IS laughing.
AND FEELING happier.
BECAUSE OF you.
AND IF you please.
WON'T YOU tell these folks.
THAT IN this city.
THERE ARE many children.
WHO NEVER had a mountain to play on.
OR CREEKS in their yards.
OR FRESH warm milk.
OR BIG bay horses.
AND THAT many of us.
ARE USUALLY so rushed.
THAT WE forget these children.
AND WE want all to know about them.
SO THAT no child.
OF ALL the hundreds.
WILL GO hungry.
ON CHRISTMAS day.
AND THEY need a lot of things.
LIKE TURKEY and chicken and "fixins."
SO PLEASE tell the folks.
AT BREAKFAST, lunch and dinner.
TO SEND contributions.
AND PLEASE send them soon.
SO WE can do our shopping early.
AND IF you'll do all this.
DEAR MR. K. C. B.
WE'LL ALL thank you.

AND THE children will thank you.

FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH! IT'S IN THE BRAIN

By Garrett P. Serviss

PROFESSOR LUDWIG SYLOW, "the Nestor of Norwegian mathematicians," as Professor G. A. Miller calls him, died recently in Christiania at the age of eighty-five. A very memorable fact about him is that he had reached the age of sixty-five years when he was appointed professor of mathematics in the Christiania University. The thing that makes this fact piquant is that sixty-five years is precisely the age at which, in the judgment of the governing boards of most schools and universities, professors instead of being appointed should be shelved or dismissed.

Moreover, Sylow was not appointed to be a mere figurehead, but to perform the active duties of his post, and that he did, with no indication of failing powers, "until the last year of his life, when," says Professor Miller, "he frequently remarked that he felt tired." He was then, remember, eighty-five.

The case of this remarkable mathematician, who has given his name to a fundamental theorem of the mathematics of "groups," which may still be taught when the Pyramids are dust, comes just at a time when the world's attention is forcibly called, in a field of more violent activity, to the enduring vigor of old age. As every reader knows, it was under the leadership of gray-haired men, like Joffre and Foch, of about the same age as that of Sylow when he was appointed professor, that the armies of the allies were led to victory, while their enemies also found that the "old heads" were the best they could get.

Dr. Osler Again Refuted

These things come as a triumphant vindication of human nature against the detraction ascribed to Dr. Osler, who, it is now said on his behalf, intended to be humorous when he practically told people hovering around sixty that the world had no use for them.

There is something here of supreme interest for every thoughtful person. The body is the instrument, as well as the temporary home, of the soul. The soul, whatever its real nature or future destiny may be, is limited in its activities here below by the capacity of the brain cells to receive its impressions and give them outward form or material expression.

The limbs obey the brain as the brain obeys the soul. But the limbs and other parts of the body which are not directly controlled by the soul, wear out, or deteriorate, faster than do the brain cells. This is proved by the fact that the intelligence of aged persons who have lived temperate and reasonable lives remains bright after their bodily powers have failed. Decay of the body does not necessarily imply a corresponding decay of the central organ, the brain.

Everybody cannot devote his life to such labors as those of Professor Sylow, or of Humboldt, who lived to be ninety, after travelling all over the world and studying and writing about almost every subject of human interest, or of John Adams, who attained the age of ninety-one, after being President of the United States (surely a wearing office), or of Cato the Censor, who "learned Greek at eighty," but in their examples everybody can find, if he will, the secret of extending his life and its usefulness.

Keeps Your Mind Active

That secret consists in giving activity to the mind. Moderate bodily exercise, diminishing in strenuousness as age progresses, is desirable, particularly for the fresh air that usually goes along with it, and incidentally for the mental stimulus which it affords. But don't imagine that a gymnasium will give you the kind of exercise you need; a gymnasium gives muscle, which is one of the most perishable constituents of the body.

MAETERLINCK SOLVES TRIANGLE PROBLEM

Maurice Maeterlinck, the distinguished Belgian poet, has really worked out the seemingly impossible problem of holding the affection of two women. His new child and his divorced wife are both happy with him at his French chateau. He has made a discovery that will interest every man and also every woman, for until Maeterlinck found the solution it had never been done before. You will want to know how he performed this miraculous feat. The explanation will be found in the magazine section of next Sunday's

BOSTON SUNDAY ADVERTISER

SALESMEN AND HUMAN INTEREST LINKED

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

EVERY era has its typical figure.

The soldier, the sailor, the churchman, the poet, the discoverer, the pioneer, the statesman, the builder, the merchant prince, the inventor, the manufacturer, the big, constructive business genius has each left his impress on our advancing civilization.

Hail to the salesman!

The keynote of today is salesmanship. One of the oldest professions in the world—an avocation which until recently no one dreamed of calling a profession, and which, up almost to the present generation, was tainted with the deceitful wiles of an Oriental bazaar—has at last come into its own.

The World's a Shop

You hear it discussed everywhere. A whole new literature has grown up about it. Experts fill the newspapers and magazines with the discussion of questions relating to it. Learned college professors devote themselves to charting out its laws and studying its problems. There are schools for salesmen, correspondence courses for salesmen, special instruction available on all phases of salesmanship.

And it isn't only the men and women of the shops and stores, the drummers and canvassers and agents who are following this new development. We have suddenly awakened to the fact that everybody is a salesman—that all the world's a shop, and all the men and women merely sellers.

It was always true, of course, but the realization comes to most of us with force of a novel discovery.

Yet we are all undoubtedly selling something—our labor or our time or our knowledge, skill, talents or personality—and we are getting paid for it either in actual money or in appreciation and credit, according to the merit of the goods and our ability at salesmanship.

Also, we are beginning to understand that the same methods which lead us to patronize a certain store or to seek out a certain girl when we wish to make a purchase in the "gloves" or in the "linens" can be successfully applied to our own affairs.

And the first rule of modern salesmanship is that you must absolutely and enthusiastically believe in what you are selling. No one yet ever made a permanent success trying to sell anything which he was not sincerely convinced was the best of its kind obtainable and worth every cent that was asked for it.

Therefore, if you are selling yourself—and most of us are in one way or another—self-depreciation can play no part in your program. There is no need to flaunt yourself or to bluster and blow. Genuine sincerity doesn't require any banners or brass band; it speaks for itself. But neither does it emulate the shrinking violet.

Another cardinal rule is that the customer must be satisfied. A satisfied customer is the best possible asset, so the saying goes; and that entails scrupulous honesty of treatment.

Honesty the Best Policy

With the method now in vogue—standardized and guaranteed goods, one price to all and that marked in plain figures, and a host of similar improvements—it seems hardly possible that only a few years back were those dark ages when one of the emblems of our country was the wooden nutmeg, and "smartness," meaning shiftiness and deceit, was, as Charles Dickens noted, our most applauded virtue.

Now that the millennium is here or that frauds and cheats have disappeared. There are still plenty of people who regard it as the height of acumen to "put one over" on somebody. The cynical creed that "one is born every minute" still has its devotees. But that is not the attitude of the big men in trade nor the practice of the leading houses. The trend of commerce today is all toward the square deal.

Other requirements of the selling art are tact, consideration, courtesy, doing it-with-a-smile—not the forced and perfunctory smile with nothing behind it, not the superior and belittling smile, and certainly not a leer, but the smile that bespeaks friendliness of spirit and a desire to be of service.
